Opening of the A. S. O. Hospital Marks an Epoch

With the opening of the handsome new hospital of the American College of Osteopathy at Kirksville, which occurred May 25th, 1906, the osteopathic profession erects a very important milestone in its career. It is not too much to say that we, as a profession, enter upon a new era as the result of having such an institution back of us.

No longer will the osteopathic practitioner in the field, remote from all others of his own faith, quake to think what he would do in the midst of medical hostility and surgical non-sympathy if his cases progressed on to a surgical finish. He is no longer helpless. He will not have to retire from such a case and leave it to his medical opponents to write his professional epitaph in the minds of the family where he has been supplanted. He will not feel helpless, isolated and without due surgical resources. Not one moment longer!

At our parent school there is now in full operation a splendid institution, built, equipped and operated without regard to expense, where our serious or capricious cases that require surgical care may be sent with absolute assurance that they will be in the best of hands as regards care and professional skill. We know that such patients will be well housed and fed with all the comfort, conveniences and protection that belongs to modern sanitarium life; that they will receive the skilled treatment of osteopathic surgeons of first-rate ability; and that after the hospital has filled its legitimate function that such patients will be discharged or returned to us with an enhanced appreciation of osteopathic dignity and ability and will thereafter remain friends and patrons of our science and practice for life.

And, brethren and sisters of Osteopathy, that is a lot to say. It is a lot to know and to feel. It is adding capital stock to the practice of every good D. O. in the field. It is adding to the stature and increasing the independence and dignity of every one of us!

We sincerely congratulate old A. S. O. and the profession alike!

The parent school of us all and our beloved founder, Dr. A. T. Still, are deserving of unstinted praise in this achievement, and we, one and all, graduates of all schools alike, give it to them with pleasurable pride and satisfaction in the giving. They are entitled to recognition for the value of this signal achievement in the name of the profession and we should all send our compliments in and give the new institution the professional support it deserves.

Drs. Charles Still and Warren Hamilton conducted the editor through the institution from top to bottom and it surely was a gratifying tour of inspection. Reception room, office, private rooms, wards, operating room, clinic room, anesthesia room, sterilizing department, bath department, dining room, store room, kitchen, laundry—from top to bottom, are all arranged and furnished in the best possible manner for convenience, safety and comfort. Osteopaths throughout the country need not hesitate to recommend particular patients there.

All of us went down to Kirksville for the tri-state jubilee, May 25th and 26th—that is, all of us who could go—and we had the time of our lives for a fact! It was the biggest and the best meeting of the kind ever held and as for clinics and general jubilee spirit, it surpassed the glories of the A. O. A. meetings every summer.

Nobody took a census and we don't know how many were present from the three states, Missouri, Iowa and Illinois, but we think there must have been close to three hundred. Of course when that number is dumped in upon a college of over 600 students and its faculty and the post graduates already there, it means that something is doing. It made a big gathering of Osteopaths.

There was something funny about the clinics. Everything happened as arranged. Everything came on scheduled time, even the babies! Drs. F. W. Young and George Still had a number of very interesting operations on and it was a great gratification to our field people to see the following cases operated on:

Two for club foot (talipes arcatus and talipes valgus); one double hare lip, one periorifery, one circumcision. One of the boy's who was operated upon for club foot, was also tongue-tied and was operated on for that.

Dr. Clark had a baby for us too. That is he had its coming arranged for us. It came on schedule time in the middle of the afternoon just following his one-hour lecture and although it was a very difficult case he landed it without any laceration, anesthesia or forceps, with the assistance of Dr. Charles E. Still.

The Missouri State Society had a great meeting too, but clinics monopolized the enthusiasm of everybody.

"Pap" was in evidence and everybody enjoyed seeing him again and hearing his old-time talks.

We all had such a good time the query naturally arises: "Why not repeat it every year?"

Looks Like Victory in Louisiana.

By a vote of 62 to 2 the Legislature of Louisiana on June 7th passed our Osteopathic bill which seeks to give us an independent examining board. The bill is now in the Senate and everything looks favorable. It would seem that we will soon be able to announce that another state had put the practice of Osteopathy upon a firm legal basis.

The Osteopathic bill is known as House Bill No. 75. It was framed up by Dr. Henry Tete, of New Orleans, who has absolutely devoted himself for several weeks to the work of having an Osteopathic law framed by Louisiana, to the neglect of practice and all private interests. He was joined by Drs. Hewes, McKeehan and Connor after the battle had well opened and this quartet made a telling fight at Baton Rouge united as one man at the finish which swept all obstacles before it. The Louisiana D. O.'s need a good law and they deserve it richly.

The proposed law is said to be drafted upon somewhat unique principles owing to the prevalence of the Napoleonic code in Louisiana territory, but a casual reading of the bill does not make these distinctive features readily apparent. The bill calls for an independent board of five D. O.'s; arranges for licensing those Osteos who have been in the state three years without examination; provides

Near to the Verge of War in Illinois

Just as we go to press we learn of an unfortunate breach over questions of policy in the ranks of the Illinois Osteopathic Association. The old division between the members of the Chicago Osteopathic Society and the members of the Chicago & Cook County Osteopathic Society seems to have opened out into a wider gap than ever instead of amalgamating the two societies into one body as seemed a probable thing at the last state meeting of the Illinois Osteopathic Society.

Dissatisfaction of the "old guard" in Illinois with the policy of the last two administrations of the state association seems to be the issue. The administration which is supported strongly by the Drs. Littlejohn and the many graduates of their school resident in Chicago pursued a policy in legislation a year ago when Dr. Wm. Hartford was president, which was antagonist to the views of the Chicago Osteopathic Society and a lot of other members of the society throughout the state. It seems that money was spent to advance a fight for legislation which, in the judgment of this wing of the profession, was ill-advised and foredoomed to disappointment, which latterly proved to be true.

Latterly, it seems an assessment of $5.00 per capita was levied to defray this expense and those opposed to pursuing that policy and who tried their best to have the association pursue another course, naturally object to paying the assessment. The officers, it is said, have decreed that nobody who has failed to pay this tax can vote or is to be regarded as a member in good standing.

Then the issue has been drawn finer when the association decided recently to hold another state meeting on June 23, in Chicago, where the last meeting was held. It has been understood, say members of the Chicago Osteopathic Society, that the next meeting was to go to the country. Decreeing to call another meeting in Chicago, they say, is to throw the decision as regards this special tax to enforce a policy that most of the leaders in the profession outside of Chicago opposed, as well as all the members of the Chicago & Cook County Osteopathic Society membership, who favor the policy pursued by ex-President Hartford last year and who wish to sustain that after June 30, 1907, none but three year graduates shall be licensed; but allows present Osteopaths in practice who cannot show a two-year diploma from a recognized school to take a searching examination in all the prescribed branches before said Osteopathic board and to be licensed if same is satisfactorily passed; reciprocity is provided for; signing birth and death certificates and reporting contagious and infectious diseases is vouchsafed and required of D. O.'s "under the same penalties as other physicians"; penalties are provided for illegally using the titles of Osteopaths and pretending illegally to practice this system.

Concurrently with the progress of this Osteopathic measure in the Louisiana legislature, there is a medical bill going forward which, if not amended, would serve to shut D. O.'s out of the state, it is said, notwithstanding an Osteopathic law. Our representatives are alert to this situation and are endeavoring to secure amendments that will multiply this danger in the event of its being a law.

him and enforce the tax levy to pay the old bills contracted.

This administration wing of the Chicago profession outnumbers the other wing, owing to the rapid growth of the Chicago & Cook County Society, which includes most all of the graduates of the Drs. Littlejohn's college who are located in Cook County, and, as the "old guard" say, it would be useless for them to go into a convention and try to enforce their chosen policy by voting against a majority holding opposition views and wishes.

They were content a year ago to be outnumbered in the Chicago convention, believing that at this year's meeting their program as regards legislation, taxation, etc., would be sustained and enforced by a big majority when they appealed to the state membership. When these people found that the trustees had called another state meeting to be held in Chicago, the Chicago Osteopathic Society concluded not to participate in the state association meeting and to so advise the out-of-Chicago members of the profession.

In consequence of this determination this letter was sent out:

Chicago, June 18th, 1906.

Dear Doctor:

The Chicago Osteopathic Society, after due deliberation, have decided, for the good of pure Osteopathy, not to indorse the present Illinois Osteopathic situation, and will not participate in the meeting of June 23, 1906.

Fraternally,
FRED W. GAGE,
CARL P. McCONNELL,
ALMEDA J. GOODSPEED,
J. R. McDUGALL,
CHARLES R. PALMER,
Committee.

Dr. Kretschmar, of Chicago, who is not a member of either society, also issues the following disclaimer:

Chicago, June 18, 1906.

Dear Sir:

My name appears on the program of the coming Osteopathic State Convention without authority. I am not in sympathy with the present Osteopathic situation in the state, but endorse the action of the Chicago Osteopathic Society.

Very sincerely,
HOWARD KRETSHMAR, D. O.

The meaning of this whole unfortunate situation seems to be that the Chicago Osteopathic Society membership and those who hold their views throughout the state propose simply to keep away from the coming Illinois Osteopathic Association meeting, where, if nothing is done to enforce a policy of which they disapprove, the way will remain open to heal the breach by another annual meeting. Should this meeting wish to enforce a policy that they know these dissenters will not sustain, then it appears as if the present state society, after seven years of successful history, will be split wide open, and there will result two state societies to perpetuate some differences of view now unfortunately represented in the two Chicago associations of practitioners.

Dr. H. H. Fryette, president of the Illinois Osteopathic Association, sends us this announcement of the meeting Saturday:

Notice, Illinois Osteopaths.

At the last meeting of the trustees of the I. O. A. it was voted to hold the next annual meeting at Chicago, June 23, 1906.

A special rate from all over the state can be obtained on that day, and in view of the fact that such a great percentage of the Osteopaths in the state are in Cook county, the excellent transportation into Chicago from all other points should insure a large attendance.

It has been thought best, in view of the misunderstanding that has prevailed among the Osteopaths in this state in regard to legislative matters, to devote a large part of the time that is usually taken for discussion of subjects pertaining to the science to a general discussion of the subject of legislation, what we need and how to get it. Drs. Howard Kretschmar, H. S. Bunting and J. M. Littlejohn will lead in this discussion, and it is sincerely hoped that every Osteopath in the state will be present and present his view on this most important topic.

Preceding this discussion, Dr. William McNary, of Milwaukee, will read a paper on "One Hundred Cases of Pneumonia Treated Osteopathically Without One Fatality," and Dr. C. N. Money, of Springfield, Ill., will read a paper, "Osteopathic Lesions Affecting the Heart."

The meeting will be held in the assembly hall, ninth floor of the Auditorium Hotel.
Come!

Yours fraternally,

H. H. FRYETTE,
President I. O. A.

Before there was any sign of a withdrawal from the coming meeting the trustees who selected Chicago for the meeting place gave as their reasons that a bigger crowd could more conveniently and cheaply assemble here than at any other place in the state and it was felt that that justified the decision. Perhaps if the Chicago Society's views on the tax issue and the fact that it would be impossible to do anything but enforce the old policy at a meeting at the Auditorium had been squarely before the trustees they would have reached another decision as to place of meeting; but it was otherwise; and the threatened breach along permanent lines is now gravely imminent.

Certainly everybody with the good of the profession at heart will hope and pray and work to the end that such a permanent division will not result. Nobody would be benefited and everybody would be hurt by it. It is bad enough to have circumstances come about that cause a one-sided state meeting to take place; but that is a trouble that can be outlived, out-grown and forgotten, if wise councils prevail next Saturday and a policy of conciliation is pursued rather than one of alienation. Let the wise course prevail! The profession would have a slim chance for getting legislation in Illinois next winter with two parties in the field and two legislative programs being promoted. Stop the fight, boys, and let's get together!

State Board Items.

After the meeting of the California State Osteopathic board May 5th at Frisco the new board organized with these officers: Dr. W. H. Ivie, of San Francisco, President; Dr. J. S. White, of Pasadena, Secretary; Dr. Isaac Burke, of Oakland, Treasurer. The other members of the board are Dr. B. P. Sheppard, of Oakland, and Dr. C. A. Whiting, of the Pacific College, Los Angeles.

Dr. C. E. Still Repudiates Ira W. Collins.

To the Profession:

Several years ago I was in Arizona and saw a number of cases that could only live in that climate. I treated a few while there, and they seemed to improve so much under treatment that I concluded it would be a good plan to have someone go into the Southwest and have a sanitarium, a sort of a tubercular sanitarium. I came home and talked to Brother Herman about going to Carlsbad, N. M., as I had concluded from observation that that would be about the best place. Herman told me Dr. Ira Collins had been talking to him and offered to furnish all the money needed to go into partnership with him in St. Louis, and if it were not for that he would go to Carlsbad. He talked it over with Collins and both of them came to see me.

Collins professed to be very much enthused over a tubercular sanitarium and agreed that Carlsbad was the place, whereupon I agreed to become interested in it and drew up a contract among the three of us for them to go to Carlsbad, N. M., and no other place. Collins went west and looked over the proposition and turned down the New Mexico contract, and without consulting me at all opened up in El Paso, Texas. He seemed to think that was the only place, and he and Herman located there. I then severed my connection with the proposition and so notified them.

It was in our contract that I was to write a letter to our men in the profession stating that I was interested in the tubercular sanitarium in New Mexico and wanted the support of the profession; but when I found the kind of a deal Collins had framed up and what an embarrassing position he would undoubtedly place me in by his cheap advertising, I wrote to the papers in El Paso and tried to get them to publish the fact that I was not associated with Collins in any way, but they refused to publish my statement.

I have written to Collins repeatedly to stop his misrepresentations, but he continues his advertising as before. I have been advised by Mr. Campbell that for me to go to El Paso, as I at first wanted to, and expose Collins' fraud, is just what Collins wants, and Mr. Campbell thinks Collins would even be willing to pay my expenses to get me there to wage a public fight against him. He is appealing to just that sort of cheap notoriety and is willing to pay money for it.

I am very sorry I ever got mixed up with Collins, even to so slight an extent. I did not know his caliber and supposed he was reliable, as he posed as a good man of Christian persuasion, being a regular attendant at some of the churches.

It was never my idea to locate a sanitarium in a city at all. Carlsbad is ideal for such work. Such an institution ought to be there.

Now, this is my connection with Collins and all of it. His insinuations are as misleading as his statements are false. I have tried to stop his shameless course, but so far have failed. It has always been my policy to encourage Osteopaths to go into new fields, and I have on many occasions taken occasion to write letters in order to get them well located, but I surely made a blunder in having any business dealings whatever with I. W. Collins.

Trusting I have gone into things in a way that will enable the profession to understand my position, I am, Yours very truly, C. E. Still, Kirksville, Mo., May 17th, 1906.

Practice Requirements in Europe.

I will be under many obligations for an answer to the following question: What are the requirements of an Osteopath to practice in either England or France? Yours sincerely, R. W. Aspley, Bowling Green, Ky., May 15th.

Dr. J. M. Littlejohn Answers.

928 W. Adams St., May 29, 1906.

In answer to yours of enclosed I will gladly state these facts as I know them. The question can best be answered (1) by stating what is the law regulating the practice of medicine, and (2) how it affects Osteopathy.

1. In Great Britain medical practice is based on registration. Registration takes place before the general council of medical registration on presentation of a diploma from the universities of the United Kingdom empowering to grant degrees in medicine, or a license from some of the licensing bodies like the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons. The law allows the holders of recognized foreign diplomas, not British subjects, to be registered on the foreign list. At the present time there are no recognized foreign diplomas. Such as are registered are the only recognized practitioners. This, however, does not forbid the practice by others than regularly recognized practitioners. Besides, the law admits the right of a foreign physician to practice among his own countrymen resident in Great Britain. Such a practitioner must announce himself without misrepresentation. That is, if he is a graduate of the United States he must so designate himself—John Smith, M. D., Rush Medical College, U. S. A., would be a good sign for an American doctor in London.

In France the practice is limited to graduates of medicine of the recognized medical faculties. Foreign doctors can enter the French schools and graduate, but no foreign doctor can practice his profession in France except on receiving a diploma for the French government as a doctor of medicine.

2. As to how the law affects Osteopathy. In Great Britain there would be no bar to a British subject practicing Osteopathy subject to the common law on crime, provided he did not misrepresent himself. American citizens would be protected only technically to the extent of practicing among their own countrymen. The Osteopaths already in England, Scotland and Ireland are not molested. The question has never been raised as to whether Osteopathy is the practice of medicine. If ever it is raised it will be decided, as recently in Manitoba, that it is the practice of medicine and hence under the control of the general council. At the same time the constitution forbids discrimination against any system of medical practice.

In France the question of practice is strictly under government control and the illegal practice would likely be prosecuted. The American Osteopath would not technically have any protection in France, because he, as a foreigner, would have no constitutional rights. To attempt to carry on the practice under a regular licentiate would expose the licentiate to the penalties of using unqualified assistance, which both in France and England is followed by suspension or expulsion for the registered list.

This, I think, answers the question. Hastily and fraternally, J. Martin, Littlejohn, 928 West Adams St., Chicago.

City vs. Town for New Graduates.

Dr. Louise Burns stated in the May O. P. that I had said the whole field of California is so well supplied with practitioners that to those seeking a location I would advise "Go somewhere else." One will turn to The O. P., for January, 1906, will find it was "of Los Angeles" that the above remark was made. As to the state at large, or the southern part of the state, I doubt not there are many localities much in need of an Osteopath. No state but has room for more of the right kind and indeed no city without room at the top. My informants as to the situation in Los Angeles are our oldest practitioners there, and I am unwilling to doubt their sincerity in saying Los Angeles is overcrowded. Let us consider briefly the proposition that confronts the osteopathic new-comer in any large city.

Rents are high, both office rent and house rent. Provisions are dearer, hence living in the home or boarding house is expensive. Opportunities for acquaintance are less for the reason that the city resident is more conservative, less curious and perhaps more selfish. In smaller cities, from the greater opportunities for consideration by one's neighbors, merit is more quickly recognized. Competition in the big city is very keen. Many Osteopaths have been there in practice for five or more years, are well advertised and better known, and the prospective patient has somehow a great respect for the physician of whom he has already heard. In fact it is more of a matter of chance that the new patient goes to the new-comer, be he ever so worthy.

Now then, to make a place in a large city. If the practitioner expects to conduct himself in an ethical manner, it is incumbent upon him to have certain assets; first of all, a good bank account, or an established income, a fair, preliminary education, a neat appearance, and some of the fraternal spirit. If he be lacking in these, he is doomed to an uphill road.

Let us consider the city of Los Angeles. It has 239,000 inhabitants according to late reports. There are said to be 120 Osteopaths there. That means 2,000 persons to each practitioner, not barring Chinamen, Japanese, and poor whites. Compare this field, its possible income and its expenses with the same chance in a smaller city. Is the game worth the cost? Would you not say in all candor and honesty "Go somewhere else." When you have become well-heeled financially, have a reputation that has gone before you, and wish the pleasures of a home in that Garden of Eden city, by all means join the others in southern California.—Fraternally yours, Edythe F. Ashmore, D. O. Detroit, June 9, 1906.

Chicago and Cook County Officers.

A meeting of the Chicago & Cook Co. Association was held June 6 for the purpose of electing new officers. Dr. Morris Lychenheim was elected president; Dr. Wm. F. Slater, vice-president; Dr. Margaret E. Schramm, secretary; and Dr. Nellie Connor White, treasurer. The meeting took place at the offices of Drs. Allen and Lucas in the Trude building.

He told the new grads to practice "straight Osteopathy" when they got into the field and

Judge Fruit called the case at the usual time, found the fugitive guilty, and imposed a fine of $75 and costs or a sentence of forty days in the county jail, which Dis-

Abuse of Ethics.

Dr. Harry T. Lee of Carlisle, Ky., reports the following unpleasant experience which we print in order to call the attention of everybody in the field to the need of strict adherence to "the golden rule," otherwise known as professional ethics:

"I sent Dr. — a patient, who stayed in — all winter, and Dr. — did about $150 worth of work for him; Dr. — was discourteous enough never to acknowledge my favor, but he was considerate enough to tell the patient that I did not know anything about giving treatments, and that, had he taken treatment longer of me, he would have been in a serious condition. He gave this patient so much hot air as to the fame (?) of himself that the patient returned to Carlisle and worked against me and told the people I was a fakir. I may not be informed absolutely correctly as to Dr. — in this matter, but the patient and his wife have continued to knock me ever since being "tutored" by this professional renegade. So it is not probably a distorted picture."

We don't believe such abuses are at all general in our ranks. The man alleged to have been guilty of this breach of decency is one

Dr. McConnell Guest at Denver.

Colorado also had one of those famously good good-times at the called meeting of the State Association at Denver, June 9th, at which Dr. McConnell, of Chicago, gave his illustrated lecture. There was a fine attendance and everything was harmonious. Other features of the program were:

Paper, Dr. N. A. Bolles, "Some Chemical Aspects of Excretion, with Special Reference to Uric Acid." Discussion led by Dr. B. F. Richards. Report of a congenital hip case, Dr. C. C. Reed. Paper, D. L. Clark, Ft. Collins; discussion led by Dr. L. B. Overfelt of Boulder. 4 to 6 p. m., informal reception to the Osteopaths and their friends to meet Dr. McConnell. Evening session at 7:30 at the Woman's Club building, where Dr. Carl P. McConnell gave his lecture.—Dr. Nettie Hubbard Bolles, Sec'y.

Greater N. Y. Quits for the Summer.

The Greater New York Osteopathic Society held its last meeting for the year May 19th at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Dr. Francis A. Cave, of Boston, was the principal speaker of the evening and gave a well-prepared paper on "Some Mechanical Considerations in Scoliosis," which was followed by a discussion. Dr. Hart, of Albany, and Dr. Williams, of Rochester, were also present and gave short talks on the result of the legislative work in this state. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Pres., Dr. Clarke F. Fletcher; Vice-Pres., Dr. Chas. Green; Sec., Dr. Evelyn K. Underwood; Treas., Dr. M. Cebelia Hollister; Keeper of Records, Dr. J. A. De Tienne; Directors, Dr. E. M. Herring, Dr. Geo. W. Riley and Dr. Arthur S. Bean. The next meeting of the society will be held September 15th, 1906.—Evelyn K. Underwood, Secretary.

Los Angeles College Asks Recognition.

The State Osteopathic Board of Examiners held a meeting at the California College of Osteopathy in San Francisco on May 5th. The most important matter which came before the board was the petition of the Los Angeles College, conducted by Col. Shaw and Dr. Forbes, for recognition. Dr. Forbes appeared in person before the board. We are surprised to learn from Dr. Forbes' own testimony that some of the students of the Los Angeles College are engaged in practice in violation of the law enacted for the protection of Osteopathy. It seems incredible that an institution claiming to educate physicians for the profession will permit any one connected with it to violate the law enacted for the protection of the profession. The petition from Dr. Forbes was respectfully received and laid on the table until the National Association shall have taken action on the college.—P. C. O. Bulletin for May.

Student Reception at Los Angeles.

On Saturday evening, May 12, The Juniors and Freshmen of the Pacific College of Osteopathy united in giving to the college and friends a reception, which was a very pleasant social affair. The Histological Laboratory was turned into a veritable flower fete, the decorations consisting of green boughs interlaced with red geraniums and red lilies. The student room glowed a bright yellow from the mustard of which the bowers were made, in each bower being a maiden and a punch bowl filled to the brim with an ice. Music by Stamm's orchestra mingled with the "buss-buzz" of merry tongues. Dr. D. L. Tasker and W. C. Bondies gave an exhibition of nerve

The relationship between a professional college and its Alumni is a very close one and everything which tends to strengthen the college is a direct moral and financial support to each Alumnus. Systems for the D. O.

Do you know that system in a physician's office is as vital—as beneficial—as profitable as in a business or commercial house? You have your records, your correspondence, your accounts. Learn to keep them in shape so that you can lay your hands on them at any minute—so you can refer to them to-morrow or a year from to-morrow, just as easily as you can to-day. For good system pays.

Ask about it. Learn to-day. Don't go on in the same old loose time-worn way. If a business house can be systematic, so can you. Send to day and find out how. Just sign your name and tell us what you want to know about.

Poor Prospects of the Medical Graduate.

In the first eight years of this century, there will have been graduated from the medical schools of this country fifty thousand physicians. Despite the fact that the profession is notoriously overcrowded, there has been an increase in the number of matriculates from the year 1882 to 1902 of 100 per cent. Of course, our population is growing steadily year by year, but the increase of physicians is far greater, thus taking the proportion of one physician to six thousand of population, allowing for a natural death rate among physicians, there would be required about three thousand new doctors each year. But in 1902, as an illustration, there were graduated five thousand physicians, considerably more than is required to meet the exigencies of the times. On the other hand, abroad, especially in Germany and France there is a decided diminution in the number of medical students each year.—Editorial in the Medical Times.

The Osteopathic Realty Company.

In a recent issue we called attention to the fact that the Alumni of the Pacific College of Osteopathy were forming a corporation for the purpose of purchasing the building and thus relieving the college of all responsibility for everything but the specific work of instruction. arate state examining board composed of osteopaths to be appointed by the governor. The convention reversed the report of the resolutions committee, which had recommended that the association work for the appointment of a single osteopath to the present state board of health. As soon as the report of the committee was read the advocates of an independent board took the floor and won out by a good majority. At the next session of the legislature the creation of a separate board will be urged.—T. B. Larrabee, D. O., Sec., Anita, Iowa.

Osteopathy Before U. S. Senate.

The United States Senate is still finding time to consider the issue of legalizing Osteopathy in the District of Columbia despite the rate bill and packing house sensations and some others. Senator Foraker, our staunch friend, presented the "Answer of the Osteopathic Association of the District of Columbia" to the Senate on May 16th, which was ordered printed. We are indebted to Dr. Wilbur Smith for a copy. This document was printed as Senate Document No. 445, 56th Congress, first session, so your congressman will send it to you if you write him. This document contains first the usual stock fallacies and misrepresentations of the "regulars" against Osteopathy being recognized, put forth by the medical society of the District of Columbia, and then is followed by the answer of the Osteopathic Association of the district. The text of the Osteopathic bill as amended is of course printed separately. It was introduced by Senator Foraker March 20th, was twice read and referred to the committee on the District of Columbia and April 16th was reported as amended. The bill would create a board of five D. O.'s with no M. D. strings to it. We all trust that the rush of senate business at the approach of hot weather will not cause our bill to be lost in the shuffle.

Indiana Has Rousing Time of It.

Indiana Osteopaths had a magnificent time at their semi-annual shake-up and get-together at La Fayette, May 18th. Dr. J. B. Kinsinger, of Rushville, state president, wielded the gavel and made a rousing speech. Dr. George M. Laughlin, of A. S. O., and Dr. Carl P. McConnell were guests of honor and were conspicuous in the program. "Round table talks" were a feature. Clinics by Dr. Laughlin were a big success, cases coming from adjacent cities. At the night session at St. John's parish house Dr. C. P. McConnell gave an Osteopathic lesion demonstration, illustrated by a stereopticon. The lecture room was crowded and the speaker was given the closest attention throughout. The views shown, to the number of fifty, were experiments conducted on dogs for the past two years, showing degenerations in the free ends of glands of the mucous membrane of the stomach, hemorrhagic congestion, degeneration of the nerve fibers in the posterior column of the spinal cord, of deep contracted back muscle, inflammation of the kidney tubules, acute catarrhal inflammation of the intestines, and similar views. The lecture was especially interesting, not only to the professional men present, but to the general public as well. At the close of the lecture the doctor invited a general discussion, answering freely all questions asked him.

The following Osteopaths were present at the convention: Drs. W. W. Blackman, Bluffton; John E. Baker, Brazil; J. H. Baughman, Connorsville; J. W. Cathcart, Peru; C. A. Camp, Huntington; J. A. Chapman, Union City; E. C. Crow, Elkhart; Elizabeth M. Crow, Elkhart; C. V. Fulham, Frankfort; J. E. P. Holland, Bloomington; W. C. Hall, Indianapolis; Alice E. Houghton, Kendallville; T. P. Huffman, city; Elizabeth Jackson, Goshen; J. B. Kinsinger, Rushville; F. P. Millard, Laporte; E. L. Manatt, Newcastle; W. A. McConnell, Marion; C. L. Nelson, Logansport; Emma B. Nugent, Indianapolis; Cora G. Parmelee, Attica; T. E. Reagan, Knightstown; Walter Rhodes, Terre Haute; F. H. Smith, Kokomo; O. E. Smith, Indianapolis; K. L. Seaman, Noblesville; J. B. Schrock, Bedford; George Tull, Indianapolis; F. A. Turfler, Rensselaer; K. T. Vyverberg, city; Kate Williams, Indianapolis; Homer Woolery, Bloomington; C. P. McConnell, Chicago, Ill.; G. M. Laughlin, Kirksville, Mo., and Mrs. Sewart, Roachdale.—E. C. Crow, Secretary, Elkhart, Ind.

Texas' Best Meeting.

The sixth annual meeting of the T. O. A. convened in the city of Waco, May 11th, with Dr. A. D. Ray of Cleburne, president, and Dr. J. L. Holloway, Dallas, secretary-treasurer. Mayor J. B. Baker extended a royal welcome, taking occasion to speak in most complimentary terms of Osteopathy, declaring that after seeking health through drugs for a quarter of a century, he had finally obtained it through the skill of an Osteopath. Dr. Paul M. Peck responded in behalf of the association in his usually happy way. Mr. Davis, a representative of the city press, made a delightfully humorous address, in which he expressed the hope that we should come into possession of our just legislative deserts.

The annual address by President Ray on "Organization and Legislation" was a strong appeal to the membership for thorough co-operation to the end that a solid front may be presented when our next legislature convenes. Among other recommendations was one to the effect that a quarterly publication be issued to keep all members informed respecting our progress and purpose.

The report of the Board of Trustees embodied a recommendation that the T. O. A. be incorporated. The legal papers having been previously prepared, by motion the old was merged into the newly incorporated association.

The recommendation that the old Senate Bill No. 61 be made the basis of legislative action next winter was adopted. The sentiment of the association was overwhelming against any compromise measure, however inviting it might be made by the "regulars."

After the report of the Committee on Membership by Dr. Peck and Publication by Dr. Holloway had been disposed of, Dr. D. S. Harris, Dallas, was called on for his paper, "Emergency Cases and Their Treatment." Not being prepared, Dr. W. E. Noonan, Houston, discussed the subject, citing a number of cases illustrative of the application of Osteopathy to same. Dr. S. A. P. Terrell, T. L. Ray and others followed in discussion. Dr. J. E. Bailey, Waco, presented a paper on "Differential Diagnosis and Treatment of Gall Stones." Discussion was opened by Dr. Nellie Hassell of San Antonio, followed by Drs. Norwood, Ray, Terrell and W. B. Harris. A telegram was sent to the "Old Doctor" expressing sympathy on account of death of his brother; also to Dr. Sisson in reply congratulating him on his escape from the San Francisco earthquake.

A seven course banquet on the evening of the 11th, graced by the presence of Mayor and Mrs. Baker, was a delightful affair. Pres. Ray served as toastmaster and responses were made by Drs. T. L. Ray, Holloway, Peck, Bennora Terrell and A. P. Terrell.

On Saturday morning the meeting opened with paper by Dr. Norwood of Mineral Wells, on "Nature and Treatment of Rheumatism." The writer showed his own patent devices for treatment of stiffened and drawn knees, and spoke of the success that had thus far attended the treatment of such cases. The paper was discussed quite at length by Drs. Loving, Peck, Bennora Terrell and others, the general sentiment being that Dr. Norwood's devices were exceptionally good for those conditions.

A symposium, "Lesions, Possible Effects and Clinical Demonstrations in Correcting Same," was presented as follows: "Cervical Lesions," by Dr. A. L. Bryan, who took the place of Dr. C. S. Klein, who was absent; "Lumbar Lesions," by Dr. Paul M. Peck; "First Rib," by Dr. T. L. Ray; "Pelvic Lesions," by Dr. A. E. Noonan. These talks and papers provoked much discussion in which nearly every member participated. Dr. Bennora Terrell's paper on "Mentruual Disorders Including the Menopause," was one of the best of the association and on request will appear in due time in one of our publications.

The report of the Committee on Resolutions among other things contained the following: "The Texas Osteopathic association in convention assembled hereby expresses its heartiest approval of the crusade against patent medicine now being waged by the publishers of Collier's Weekly. We believe the bringing before the public the facts pertaining to so-called patent medicines in their series of articles under the title 'The Great American Fraud,' will do much to enlighten the people on the evils of the patent medicine traffic. We would appreciate these articles in pamphlet form and believe their general distribution will do much toward the protection of public health."

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Dr. James L. Holloway, Dallas, President; Dr. J. F. Bailey, Waco, 1st Vice President; Dr. Julia M. Sarratt, Waco, 2nd Vice President; Dr. R. R. Norwood, Mineral Wells, Sec.-Treas.; Dr. Paul M. Peck, San Antonio, and Dr. W. B. Loving, Sherman, were elected as Trustees for three years, the terms of Dr. D. S. Harris, Dallas, and Dr. R. R. Norwood, Mineral Wells, having expired. Houston was selected for the next place of meeting, the time being left to the President and Secretary-elect.

The following gains in membership have been made during the year: Dr. D. M. Barnes, Meridian; Dr. F. W. Christensen, El Paso; Dr. Maud G. Russell, Commerce; Dr. Julia Sarratt, Waco; Dr. D. L. Davis, Meridian; Dr. J. O. Lowry, Ennis; Dr. J. B. Lynd, Houston; Dr. N. R. Lynd, Houston; Dr. A. P. Terrell, Dallas; Dr. R. M. Mitchell, New Boston; Dr. R. P. Coulter, Hico; Dr. Geo. A. Wells, Greenville; Dr. Birdie Gayle, Waco; Dr. Jesse Gildersleeve, Waco; Dr. Eugene Sanner, Corsicana; Dr. G. B. Armstrong, Dallas. These are recorded: Dr. L. B. Hughes, to California; Dr. N. B. Barnes, to Colorado; Dr. F. M. Bailey, to Indian Territory; Dr. D. L. Clark, to Colorado; Dr. J. H. Overton, resigned.

This meeting was the largest and best ever held in the six years the Texas association has been organized. It is hoped by next year every reputable Osteopath in the State may become affiliated with the State organization—James L. Holloway, Dallas, Texas, May 7th.

Dr. George Still Shares Surgical Work.

We note that Dr. George Still, who was the surgeon in charge of the Des Moines Hospital during the activity of the S. S. Still School of Osteopathy will share the surgery at the A. S. O. Hospital from now on. Dr. George Still is a graduate of Rush and a product of the Cook County Hospital clinics where everything under the sun in surgery is done and witnessed and his opportunities have made a very clever operator of him. Besides George is strictly an "Osteopathic product"; so we are doubly proud of him.

EDITORIAL.

"Hew to the line, let chips fall where they will."

We have reached the U. S. Senate. Good enough!

May 14th was the 14th anniversary of the A. S. O.

Texas will make the fight of its life for our new Osteopathic bill which comes before the legislature this winter.

We would all be glad to have a certain law go into effect with the signature "T. Roosevelt" at the bottom. Then "Teddy" would have a chance to climb into that galaxy of governors and rulers who have endorsed Osteopathy.

Dr. J. Martin Littlejohn explains the status of the D. O. under the laws and customs of Great Britain and France in the Open Court department of this issue to which we call attention. This information has frequently been asked of the editor by letter.

New Osteopaths going into fields where other members of their profession are already in practice should not forget that the proprietaries demand that they call upon their elder brethren and sisters at as early a date as possible. There's a reason for it.

The state society is surely lucky that gets the privilege of hearing and seeing Dr. C. P. McConnell unfold the progress of his laboratory work in one of his illustrated lectures. Kentucky, Indiana and Colorado have each recently had this feature in their programs. We wish that Dr. Carl had nothing else to do but visit about in the Osteopathic family and preach his good gospel of "Osteopathy Demonstrated by Scientific Procedure"—of which he is unquestionably our ablest exponent today. May he have many emulators.

One Benefit of a Good Law.

The way that a La Crosse, Wisconsin, court chased Whipple, the chiropracticator, out of the state for faking Osteopathy is one of the best object lessons the profession has yet had of the advantages of having a strong Osteopathic statute. Dr. A. U. Jorris, our member on the state board, deserves great praise for his intelligence and industry displayed in handling this case.

Just Tribute to Dr. McConnell.

The Indiana Osteopathic Society at its semi-annual meeting at La Fayette, May 18th, passed the following important resolutions unanimously in recognition of the scientific services to his profession, being tendered by Dr. Carl P. McConnell of Chicago:

Whereas, the osteopathic theory that structural disarrangement of the framework of the body, especially the spinal column and contiguous bones, producing strained conditions and pressure on nerves, and vessels in contact or adjacent to them, thereby causing weakened or excessive functional activities of distal organs, and,

Whereas, this theory has never been demonstrated but little beyond the empirical stage, and,

Whereas, Dr. Carl P. McConnell has in a series of recent laboratory experiments demonstrated beyond a reasonable doubt that this theory is correct, thereby placing osteopathy upon the higher plane of demonstrative science, far above the low and hazy ground of empirical practice. Therefore be it

Resolved, that it is in the sense of the Indiana Osteopathic society, that Dr. McConnell be given a vote of thanks for the brilliant laboratory researches he has made for the establishment of the fundamental principles of osteopathy.

When the M. D.'s Are Licked.

The osteopathic historian observes that in almost every instance in our history the state societies of the M. D.'s have fought against giving us legal regulation of our practice; that they have represented that we are illiterate ignoramuses who want to be crowned with the diadem of physicians yet without the educational qualifications possessed by themselves; and that as long as there was any chance to embarrass and defeat our plans they have pursued their bigoted policy uninterrupted. Knowing all this the student of osteopathic history understands that the "regulars" don't come to the osteopathic camp bearing an olive branch of peace until they are licked to a standstill and see absolute defeat ahead of them. He knows that when the medics come to the osteopaths after such a buccaneering course and propose "that we get together" and pass "a compromise law," giving one D. O. a place on the board but its absolute control staying in the hands of the "regulars," that the M. D.'s are only sparring to save their faces and retain control of all public health matters after the scepter of power has passed from their hands. And—does the wise osteopath who is a student of history then agree to the schedule?

Not if he has wisdom!

Putting the Newspapers Right on Osteopathy.

One of the best summaries of a local legislative situation as relates to health and Osteopathy that we have seen lately is an editorial from the New Orleans (La.) Times-Democrat of May 28th, and the article is so fair and convincing that we reproduce it for the benefit of the profession. It indicates how the press may be utilized as the ally of truth and the booster of Osteopathy where our practitioners see to it that editors get a comprehensive understanding of the issue and are kept fully posted. Such editorials in representative city newspapers are each worth thousands of dollars to our local practitioners and they are surely worth the trouble it takes to get them written. In every legislative fight all fair-minded newspapers will be glad to get such facts and put them before their readers. If such articles can't be obtained, it's a safe bet that local Osteopaths have not put the facts of our science and the merits of the legislative issue in sufficiently clear, intelligible and convincing form as to win the confidence and support of managing editors. Accomplishing this task is often half the battle in a legislative fight, so The O. P. never tires of admonishing our people to get their cause fairly and squarely lodged in the minds of the local newspapers. The Times-Democrat editorial is as follows:

OSTEOPATHY AND THE MEDICAL BILL.

There is now pending before the Legislature of Louisiana a [medical] bill which, if passed, will do grave injustice to professional men and citizens who believe in the principles of osteopathy, a method of treating disease without drugs. Osteopathy has made considerable progress in the United States, and while its principles are of comparatively recent application, a number of states have, by legislative enactments, recognized the right of the osteopath to practice on an equal footing with his fellows of other scientific schools. The science rests upon a biological rather than upon a chemical basis, and relies upon the intrinsic powers of the body, or the affected part of the body, to restore the normal and healthy status. These powers, latent in the human mechanism, and often arrested or dwarfed by a disturbance of the normal distribution of physical energies, may be and often are, freed and vitalized by muscular and bone manipulation, according to the belief and practice of osteopaths.

Other progressive States have not only recognized the utter harmlessness of osteopathy, but by affirmative legislation they have specifically proclaimed its virtues, and hence have given it an equal chance with other useful sciences devoted to the amelioration of human suffering. Louisiana should not do less in this respect than other progressive American States. This is an age of liberalism, of tolerance, an age of intellectual freshness and expansiveness. In the legislative policy of the State we have hitherto been quick to respond to the newer ideas really worth while, and we should take no backward step now.

With such fundamental differences as may exist between the biological and chemical schools of medicine we have no serious concern; but osteopathy has made a record in this country which has received legislative sanction, and there is no reason why Louisiana should put a heavy hand upon this method of treatment and drive those engaged in it from the borders of the State. Institutions devoted exclusively to this treatment have been established in many sections of the country, and there are a number of schools in which men are thoroughly trained for osteopathic practice. It is a matter of common knowledge that the training in these schools, scientifically considered with particular reference to the functions of the human organism, is as thorough as progressive science may make it. Osteopathy is essentially a scientific method of treatment, as much so as any other method devised by the genius of man, and as such should be recognized by the State. Louisiana should not legislate against it, and we are inclined to believe the State will not do so.

The way to get managing editors to print such things as this is to have our representative people make calls upon them and put the facts before them as they are. Explain your mission briefly as one to submit facts and ask for a square and an intelligent deal. Submit a copy of The Osteopathic Directory for 1906 explaining that it gives statistics and reliable institutional data about the profession, including the laws enacted to date in its recognition and control; submit a copy of the Journal of the Association containing Dr. McConnell's report on laboratory findings in demonstration of Osteopathy; submit a few copies of popular literature explaining our science and practice in the simplest way possible, including by all means Most Disease are of Spinal Origin and The Osteopathic Cathecism from the back files of Osteopathic Health; including any other good popular presentation of our theories that you may find; and by all means including a copy of Dr. Booth's excellent History of Osteopathy. Leave these things for leisurely inspection, if the managing editor shows the least interest in informing himself about a very important public issue; if he manifests any pleasure at the chance for light thus afforded him, offer to give this collection of data to the newspaper library for permanent reference; assure him you will be glad to give him some of our standard textbooks on principles and practice if he would be interested and any other data that would aid his newspaper to arrive at an intelligent opinion.

There will be found to be a marvelous rallying to our cause by the press if such a liberal and practical policy of publicity is carefully followed out. I would advise it not only in the heat of legislative battles—although it is most imperative then—but also as a means of getting right with the papers and putting them and the people right with us in every city and state of this union in times of peace. We never know when an issue will be made of Osteopathy in any locality. Our law may be repealed suddenly by a later medical law; courts may put harsh constructions on our statutes; we are liable any moment to find ourselves beset with strife. Therefore it behooves us as a profession to take time by the forelock and be wise and prudent in this matter as we have the light. We can't lose out by having the newspapers understand our position.

Despite the frequent charges of veniality on the part of the press it is a matter of common experience that they are fair and square in the great majority of instances and may generally be relied upon to act according to their light. At this time, for instance, we recall but one newspaper in the United States of any prominence that is uniformly unfair, untruthful, malicious, sarcastic and slanderous in everything it prints relating to Osteopathy. That newspaper—great in other respects, is The New York Times, the property of Mr. Adolph Ochs, and in its case it is to be explained that Mr. Ochs himself has no fight upon Osteopathy but merely has the misfortune and shortsightedness to have entrusted the direction of the health and medical policy of his paper to one George F. Shrady, M. D.—if our information is trustworthy—and Dr. Shrady happens to be as bitter a bigot in defense of the "regular" school of medicine as the generation has produced. Now everybody concerned professionally understands this situation full well and the public is beginning to appreciate it, so when Dr. Shrady's untrue and malicious attacks upon Osteopathy appear in The New York Times from time to time it is duly appreciated that the arch-enemy of Osteopathy has again prostituted an editorial trust to grind a private ax and advance his own selfish professional interests at the expense of truth.

I'll wager that our Greater New York Society brethren have never sent a committee to visit Mr. Ochs and put the case before him on its merits, and that they have never submitted the printed evidence that I have recommended in this article. If they should do it now I predict at this late date—after the N. Y. Times has done us grave, but not irreparable, wrong in two legislative campaigns—that Mr. Ochs would "remove the lesion." I know something of the man and his honest, fearless policy of journalism, and I know that he is not running any of his great newspaper properties in the interests of private graft for the "regular" school of medicine. I used to be Mr. Ochs's Florence, Alabama, correspondent in 1891 when his newspaper enterprises had not spread out further than The Chattanooga News, and I know that he believes in the doctrine of the square deal. As a means of starting the ball rolling I shall blue pencil this editorial and send it to Mr. Ochs in a personal letter, hoping to reach his notice with it, and it will then be up to our New York people to follow it up with a personal embassy to call upon him.

Our cause is fair and we only need to be understood to get justice in every state and city of this union where we are not yet accorded our legislative rights. Let us begin our third and last battle in New York State by setting our cause right with Mr. Ochs and The New York Times. We could make no more auspicious beginning.

Dr. Dain L. Tasker a Useful Worker in the D. O. Vineyard.

The progress of a profession is measured by the stature of its practitioners, not alone in one city or section, but throughout the world. The growth of its representative members as individuals and the height they attain are the only units of measurement by which the whole system may be judged. A school of therapy can not make a better record as to cures, nor write better text-books, nor do more faithful research work, nor perfect the art of instruction better than do its individual members.

Measured thus by a decade of work by Dr. Dain L. Tasker, one of our pioneers on the Pacific coast, as practitioner, teacher, clinician, author and leader in all activities that make for the welfare of the profession, one is assured that the cause of Osteopathy is advancing steadily and satisfactorily in all directions—not less in those sections of the union remote from the birthplace of Osteopathy than in its native environs.

It is very gratifying, too, to see stalwarts like Dr. Tasker developing out of each of the various centers of Osteopathy that have been planted at distant parts of the country—"native sons," so to speak, and it presages well for the future of our profession that its exponents show such strong fertility of resource and capacity for growth in each locality where our science takes root.

Dr. Tasker always expected to be a physician, even before knowing anything of Osteopathy. He had pursued the study of anatomy and physiology with preceptors since 1890 with the expectation of entering Rush Medical College. In 1896 he became interested in Osteopathy while a resident of Riverside, California, Dr. A. C. Moore having just opened the second college of Osteopathy in the world at Anaheim. Dr. Tasker became one of his first matriculants and at once entered upon an enthusiastic pursuit of osteopathic knowledge. His equipment in anatomy, with as yet no educational bias in favor of drugs, but rather a natural aversion to them, made him an apt pupil and one who advanced rapidly in his new career.

The Pacific College of Osteopathy soon became incorporated, and Dr. Tasker was one of its directors in May, 1897. He began to teach anatomy the following September and has taught continuously in the school ever since. He began to teach the principles of Osteopathy in 1899 and has continued in that work with the addition of the branch of practice and having charge of clinics. This makes Dr. Tasker a continuous osteopathic educator for nine years, which crowns him one of the deans of our teaching corps. Who among our professors have taught uninterruptedly for nine years? They be few, if any, surely.

As a school officer Dr. Tasker was vice-president of Pacific School for six years, a director of the sanitarium of the school for a time and for years a member of the operating staff of that infirmary. Dr. Tasker has thus given of his time and energy freely to school work, believing it to be the duty of our practitioners to support our own schools and aid in their development and encouragement in every way possible.

As a worker in the professional societies, local and national, Dr. Tasker has been as useful as in teaching. He was the first president of the California Osteopathic Association. He was a member of the state board of examiners for five years and president of the board three years. He served as second vice-president of the American Osteopathic Association in 1903-4; also as a member of the association's legislative committee for three years.

from Dr. Tasker as an author and editor also. His first journalistic honors were won as editor of The Osteopath for four years, a judiciously edited, ably written magazine, rather of the scientific type, which was one of our pioneer publications. With the multiplicity of publications for the profession the Pacific school finally ceased its issuance. From this entrance upon osteopathic journalism, Dr.

Tasker became a contributor to the various periodical literature of the profession, mainly scientific, but at the same time writing a very meritorious, popular presentation of Osteopathy—a gift not possessed by many people, by the way, that of writing equally well in either field. Dr. Tasker also served one year as associate editor of the Journal of the Association.

But it is as a text-book writer that Dr. Tasker has rendered his most valued service to the profession. His Principles of Osteopathy, now in its second edition, marked a new method of preparation of our school literature at the time of its appearance, being arranged in more logical and scientific form than other more hastily prepared books that had preceded it. It is a mark of this book, too, that while it deals with the technical facts and basic principles of Osteopathy—considerations which are apt to be expressed in a fog of scientific nomenclature—the author has stated his propositions in such few words and has built up his proofs of each in such lucid, short sentences that the text becomes as luminous to a first-term student as to graduates. The educational world is learning, by the way, that text-books need no longer be abstruse, wordy, involved and difficult to comprehend. He who runs should be able to read and understand. Dr. Tasker's excellent book, which is profusely illustrated, fills this function adequately. It is indispensable to every osteopathic student.

Yet each of these varied lines of professional activity—that of student, teacher, writer, executive officer—have been adjunctive with Dr. Tasker to his main purpose in life, that of being a practitioner of Osteopathy. He has devoted himself to this other work not less to develop the full fruition of his own capacity than to help the advancement of his beloved science and profession—which of course are the two objective points in the life of every sincere worker in the osteopathic vineyard. For years Dr. and Mrs. Tasker have enjoyed a very desirable practice—as much as the hours of the day will let them take care of—so that it is as a practitioner, after all, that Dr. Tasker is best known in his own city.

Dr. Dain L. Tasker was born at Beloit, Wis., in 1872. He had a high school education in Chicago and served a couple of years in title abstract work, 1891-2, before removing to California. In these years he was already preparing to enter upon the study of medicine. His mother, Dr. Anna E. Tasker, is an Osteopath; also an aunt; so the Taskers are surely one of our "osteopathic families."

Dr. Cora Newell Tasker is practically as vital a part of her husband's work as himself. She was a student of Osteopathy under Prof.

EVERY Osteopath has from one to a dozen patients that he must, for various reasons, treat in their homes. Owing to this fact I have invented a handy little folding table which obviates all awkwardness, embarrassment and weariness connected with treating on low beds. It enables you to give your patient not a half, but a thorough treatment. It will get you extra calls and patients, save your time, which means money, your back, which means your health, and add dignity to your practice and profession.

Just the thing for your branch office or home. Can incline it for Trendelenburg position, or fold flat to set in closet. An ornament to any room. Tell your patients about it and they will buy one. Several such tables will prove a necessity in your practice. Oak-turned legs, imitation leather cover, strong and solid. Price, $7.50 each. For full description, address, A. D. Glascock, D. O., Owosso, Mich.

while "breaking up" the lumbar spine. "You need not lift the legs of that 200-pound patient off the end of the table and swing his feet in mid-air at the cost of your own strength unless you like it for mere exercise. Even if you like that sort of strain and have no fear of rupture, or pulling down of your own organs. The Common Sense Treating Table and Adjustable Swing is still better than ordinary tables for many reasons. It is light, strong, durable, portable, movable, comfortable and beautiful, and is not an expensive table. No man afraid of rupture, or valuing his own vitality, can afford to use any other table. No woman, mindful of the special handicaps of her sex, WILL use any other. Adapted to every one's needs alike. Write for circulars and prices. Everything in the book line also. She enjoyed a high school and a girls' school education before entering the Pacific College, from which she graduated in 1900. She was the first president of the Los Angeles County Osteopathic Society and is a trustee of the A. O. A. at this time. Dr. and Mrs. Tasker have one daughter.

The Doctors Tasker have a host of friends in the osteopathic profession, where their wealth of mind and heart, their stalwart principles and devotion to duty are appreciated by all.

Dr. and Mrs. Tasker are soon to enjoy handsome new offices in Los Angeles, of which Dr. Tasker writes us as follows:

"We will be located in the Auditorium building, corner of Fifth and Olive streets, about next September. We have leased a large space in that building, which is designed to take physicians and dentists as tenants. All our rooms will be outside rooms, with plenty of light and ventilation. The plans for our partitions look as though they would give us a most convenient arrangement for doing all the work that can be crowded into a day. This building is built of reinforced concrete and is considered to be the biggest thing of its kind in the world. The enclosed card will give you an idea of its beauty. Drs. Hayden and Emery will also be located in this building. It shows the standing of Osteopathy in this city when Osteopaths are solicited to take offices in a building designed for physicians only."

People Want Facts Before Theories.

"I don't care so much how or why you cure your osteopathic cases as to learn what you have cured," Mr. Opie Read, the well-known novelist, exclaimed to the editor at the Chicago Press Club years ago while I was laboring to open his eyes and convert him to our modern therapeutic science. I found that as intelligent a man as Mr. Read had to be interested first with reports of actual cases. He felt able to make his own deductions as soon as enough cures had been presented to him.

We practitioners appreciate much better than laymen the inherent fallacy of judging the worth of a system of therapeutics entirely by its apparent "cures." The layman who judges solely by this standard is ever ready to believe wildly, enthusiastically and blindly the healing virtues of any system or thing to which he once pins his faith, and to make rash claims for it that put its own exponents to blush because they better understand the difficulty or impossibility of its fulfillment.

Yet such people are the zealots and missionaries who spread the light, who have passed the fame of Osteopathy on before the coming of its practitioners into new fields and who persuade the public to turn from drug bondage to the light of truth.

Their service is absolutely invaluable to the practitioner. Time tones down their errors and teaches the too expectant just what they may and what they may not hope for in the way of cures without meeting disappointment. Out of this class of zealots who at first believed that Osteopathy could almost make the dead to rise, have also come hundreds of osteopathic students, now our best practitioners in the field.

So, fervent imagination and unbounded faith have their great utility in the development of a new science of medicine like Osteopathy, and it is well that such factors exist. We could not well get along without them. We should not discourage these people of unbounded faith in their faith, for as the Man of Galilee taught, faith is about the greatest thing in the world and we all need more of it; but little by little in the natural course of things these enthusiasts should be educated into the proper appreciation of principles as well as facts until their judgments become as trustworthy finally as their faith has been liberal.

The best way to do this educating is to follow the plan inaugurated by Mr. Read for his own satisfaction, namely: attract the attention of the candidate for conversion to Osteopathy, first, by citing concrete cases of cures that our science has performed after all other helpers had failed; next, after interest has been thoroughly aroused, to pass on to the explanation of the theory of its cause and cure, unfolding naturally the principles of the operation. Let the inquirer or convert have facts first; then explanations. He will then be prepared to understand and to defend his faith against all adversaries.

July Issue Gives Facts.

Following out this method of giving instruction without seeming to do so, the editor has prepared the July issue of "Osteopathic Health" so as to satisfy the wants of that countless number of people and patients everywhere who "want to know the facts." He submits this number as an illustration of the principle he is now presenting. While we give a sufficient, yet brief, explanation of our theories of cure in this number so that all who want to understand theories may—yet the bulk of the July issue is given up to recounting in a general and popular way some of the concrete things that Osteopathy has done and is still doing every day as it has the opportunity presented.

This issue has been prepared in response to a large number of requests from our practitioners who report that their patients ask for this sort of literature; so there can be no doubt that it is timely and needed. Of course nothing in the way of a testimonial is worth considering, nor has it found place in this number.

It is the belief of the editor that this July number will form an invincible armada for the new graduate to storm new fields with not less than for old graduates to bombard old fields and win them over to capitulation to our science. It is also designed as an issue to overcome "summer slowness" in any field where it is distributed liberally. It will surely stimulate summer practice by bringing out "chronics" for treatment, as well as bidding for new lines of practice like fevers and other acute summer ills.

The contents of the July issue of "O. H." are given in another article in this issue.

Contents of "O. H." for July.

The leading article of Osteopathic Health for July is on Eye Diseases and its the kind of an article that will "do business" among people whose eyes need treatment. It recounts briefly some of the extraordinary cures that have been made by Osteopathy among the blind. People will argue that if it has done some of these wonders in eye cases it ought to be efficacious in the minor eye maladies—as it is!

Infantile Paralysis is the subject of a good convincing sketch by Dr. Noyes Gaylord Husk of Pittsburgh. It hits the mark.

Anemia is presented in a good article by Dr. L. M. Rheem, of Minneapolis.

What Constitutes a Fair Trial? That is a thing that comes up in the mind of every new patient. We answer it. Patients new and old should read this article.

Typhoid from Two Points of View, the M. D. and the D. O. angles of vision respectively, is simply and convincingly put by an M. D., D. O.—Dr. Williams, of Lansing, Michigan. This article is wholesome and persuades that it is not any risk and not in the nature of letting go of an old life-preserver to forego a course of medication in order to substitute Osteopathy in a siege of fever.

Osteopathy Explained is a brief, clear, forceful presentation of our theories of pathology and cure.

A note tells the Hay Fever patient to begin treatment at once.

The Parable of the Pirate Skipper is an illumination of the folly of cutting out all the organs of the body we don't yet understand the use for as soon as they become inflamed. It is a protest against hasty surgery.

He who runs may read and will surely understand this number. Edition limited. It will not last long. How many can you use?

SUMMER PRACTICE BOOSTING.

A good article on eye disease in July.

June "O. H." has proven deservedly popular and is still selling rapidly.

The July parable is to elucidate the danger of hasty surgery and too much surgery.

Instructions about making up a mailing sent to applicants. Ask for our "yellow sheet."

Our "pink sheet" gives full information about professional cards. Write for it if you haven't got it.

When practice threatens to let up push your educational campaign harder—that is unless you don't need the money and are glad to have a rest.

The Osteopathic parables now running in Osteopathic Health are winning much favorable comment from the field.

If your patients ask for literature that gives cases which have been cured, read the July number of Osteopathic Health carefully and place your order.

Back numbers still in stock are April, June and July, 1905, and January, March and May, 1906, which are available at $2.00 per hundred, expressage extra.

Wanted—a good brief article on malaria for "O. H." It has been requested by several doctors. The editor never had such a case. Who has had the experience and will write us an article?

If you feel the need of any particular article on some special topic in your educational campaign write the editor of Osteopathic Health and he will be pleased to accommodate you as early as possible.

We have not printed one extra copy of the forthcoming July issue of Osteopathic Health over the orders in hand and an additional number equal to the sales of the June issue already made up to this date, so it is certain the edition will not last long, as it is a remarkable number in several ways. We predict that it will not only sell out before the end of July but likely a good deal sooner. If you want this number, therefore, you are given the tip to order it early.

The June, July, August and September issues of Osteopathic Health for 1906 as a series will constitute a carefully studied out campaign of education that no field can resist without yielding its converts and patients to the doctor who makes liberal and intelligent use of these numbers in consecutive order. Practitioners might as well have the benefit of a studied program and a carefully mapped out campaign from month to month as to use literature served helter-skelter without definite purpose.

Booming City Practice.

We got a fine return from that last batch of Osteopathic Healths. The 500 brought us complimentary letters, letters of inquiry and several new patients. We are well pleased.—Drs. Eckert & Case, St. Louis, Mo., May 25th.

By Their Fruits.

My "O. H.'s" are already bearing fruit, and I may take the occasion to increase my order. The April number is one of the choicest I have seen.—Dr. C. W. Gaddis, Kansas City, Kans., April 3d.

Results Tell.

Business is still on the incline, thanks to a liberal application of "Osteopathic Healths" and the fact that "results tell."—Dr. J. Clinton McFadden, Pomeroy, Wash., June 10th.

Percentage Proofs.

We received magazines all O. K. We find that "O. H." increases our practice a good percent.—Drs. Munn & Knox, Bellingham, Wash., April 18th.

Another Witness.

I have been thinking of writing to you and telling you what you have been told before, and that is that your "O. H." is the correct thing with which to convince patients of the worth and science of Osteopathy.—Dr. Lucy A. Dailey, Duluth, Minn., May 29th.

Dr. Murray Does His Liberally.

Please duplicate my last order for one thousand copies of "Osteopathic Health" with card for the May issue.—Dr. John J. Murray, Trenton, N. J., April 27th.

June Seems Perfection.

Each copy of "O. H." seems to appeal to me more and the June issue is as near perfect as I would want it. I think it ought to get patients.—Dr. R. H. Boyd, Union City, Tenn., May 22d.

He Deserves Results.

Please increase my order to 500 for the May "O. H." and send them as soon as possible. It looks like a patient-getter.—Dr. C. E. Stewart, Moline, Ill., April 24th.

Fills a Want.

I think "O. H." a good medium to reach new patients. It fills a want I had felt for some time.—Dr. Evan Williams, Los Angeles, Cal., May 16th.

May Issue a Favorite.

Of all journals I have read—and I have read most of them—I think the May issue of Osteopathic Health is the best. If you have 100 left, please express them to me at once.—Dr. Vivian H. Price, Covington, Tenn., May 10th.

* * *

I want 200 of the May number just as soon as you can get them to me. They are just what I want.—Dr. A. E. Hook, Topeka, Kans., April 23d.

* * *

Please send me 25 extra copies of the May "O. H." It is fine—just what I have been wanting for some time.—Dr. Bertha E. Sawyer, Ashland, Ore.

* * *

I think the May issue of "O. H." is a splendid number.—Dr. Geo. P. Pierson, Sabetha, Kans., April 24th.

* * *

Your May "O. H." is the "best ever." Send me a hundred.—Dr. J. B. Schrock, Bedford, Ind., May 20th.

* * *

This May Issue is still in stock and may be had for $2.00 per hundred, expressage extra.

Some Back Numbers Offered.

Our "back numbers," which were slashed ninety days ago at a bargain sale, are now reduced to six numbers, and as there are but two orders of 100 each left for two of these months, it is equivalent to saying we have a supply of but three back numbers on sale. Those numbers left and the supply available are as follows:

If you want to get a supply of these back numbers at $2.00 per hundred, expressage extra, order at once.
