

Master of Science in Occupational Therapy (M.S.) Entry-level Residential Program

A.T. Still University

Home of the world's first osteopathic medical school, founded in 1892, A.T. Still University is a multidisciplinary healthcare education and training university founded on whole person care. ATSU comprises the Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine (KCOM), the School of Osteopathic Medicine in Arizona (SOMA), the Arizona School of Health Sciences (ASHS), the Arizona School of Dentistry & Oral Health (ASDOH), the online School of Health Management (SHM).

Arizona School of Health Sciences

The Arizona School of Health Sciences, located in Mesa, Arizona, offers doctoral and Master of Science degrees in a wide range of healthcare disciplines and strives to advance healthcare by educating compassionate, competent healthcare professionals. The school's interdisciplinary and technology emphasis, with incorporation of a philosophy of wholeness and treatment of body, mind, and spirit, creates an excellent professional educational environment.

Master of Science in Occupational Therapy (M.S.)

Occupational therapy is the use of occupation or purposeful activity and interventions to achieve functional outcomes and promote health. Achieving functional outcomes means to develop, improve, or restore the highest possible level of independence of any individual who is limited by a physical injury or illness, a dysfunctional condition, a cognitive impairment, a psychological dysfunction, a mental illness, a developmental or learning disability, or adverse environmental condition(s). Occupational therapists work cooperatively with other members of the healthcare team.

The Curriculum

The Occupational Therapy Program supports the philosophy of holistic treatment, incorporating the body, mind, and spirit. The mission of the Occupational Therapy Program is to prepare high quality practitioners to meet patient needs in changing healthcare delivery settings. Students in the Occupational Therapy Program have opportunities, through core classes in the curriculum, to learn about other professions and work with students from the Arizona School of Health Sciences' Audiology, Physician Assistant, Physical Therapy and Athletic Training programs. Interdisciplinary education demonstrates cooperation and collaboration among health science professionals and leads to more effective healthcare delivery in divergent practice settings. The Occupational Therapy Program provides a strong foundation of critical inquiry applied to the practice, education, and administration of healthcare. The use of technology is integrated into instructional processes and occupational therapy treatment. The program is designed to be completed in 28 months.
