All diseases are mere effects; the cause being a partial or complete failure of the nerves to properly conduct the fluids of life.

Help Buy the Massachusetts College

Twenty Thousand is needed to start this college to a more substantial Osteopathic foundation. When the charter is purchased from the M. D. who now owns it, the school will be placed under the management of the Educational Department of the A. O. A.

The purpose of this campaign is to purchase the charter of the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy from the M. D. who now owns it, and then to present it to the Educational Department of the AOA who shall manage and conduct the college for the advancement of Osteopathy. This college thereby will become a college owned by the profession in fact. There is a bound indebtedness against the college which we believe the profession with the proper professional backing behind it will be able to pay from earnings, or otherwise if the Educational Department chooses.

Let us put this school on the proper basis—Osteologically Owned and Controlled.

The Old Doctor was a physician and a surgeon. Osteopathy is his memorial of service to the world. Osteopathic Practice as he taught it and asked us to carry it to the public as his work did not include the use of drugs in any form as a cure for disease. The best minds and the ones so far above them in their work that they are leading the Medical World today are turning more and more from the old time methods to Drug Dosage.

Look at the present day laboratory pursuit of the causes of disease in other Universities. Hear what the great Doctor Plessman has to say about the use of drugs in the cure of the Surgical Cases during the war. Every physician that uses a serum in practice is discarding drugs and working on the theory of nature's own cell immunity as the best security against infection.

Doctor Still taught us to teach as a Profession to go about helping the ones who lacked the intelligence and education of structure necessary for complete cure. We must use dignity and fair play in no uncertain terms.

STATE AROUSED OVER BLACK PLANS TO MAKE HIMSELF HEALTH CZAR

His Bill on Healing Arts Should Be Killed as Perilous Legislation, Declares Dr. Spence

Politis to Dangers of One-Man Power

Opposition is steadily growing to the substitute bill regulating the practice of "the healing arts" in Connecticut, although State Health Commissioner Black's original bill did not anticipate as much opposition as was removed by the original bill. A legislative hearing on the new bill will take place at the Capitol on March 26.

Speaking for osteopaths from all parts of Connecticut and for other adherents of various forms of healing, who are now completely around all over Connecticut, Dr. Philip Sumner Spence of this city said yesterday that Dr. Black is attempting to control the personal and public health work being done in the state. He urged that the bill, if it is not amended, will be changed to remove the one-man power.

Perilous Legislation

"If this bill is not changed," said Dr. Spence, "it should be defeated, as it is perilous legislation in its present form."

"If a board of regents is formed, then there should be complete representation upon it from each school of practice governed by its rules. The meetings, finances, reports, issues of literature, and the appointment of the duties of the examining boards shall all be under the supervision of the board of regents and not under the state department of health as Dr. Black provides in his bill. The board of regents should have the power to appoint everyone holding office in the state department of health and each department should be subject to its jurisdiction rather than to distant policies."

"The central boards should have full power to determine the intellectual abilities of the candidates who apply to practice their chosen art in the state, and they should have full control in the sooner or later exclusion of the commissioner of health. Religions and cults should not be classified as the school of medicine, but they are in the bill introduced for Dr. Black."

"According to this bill, introduced for the commissioner of health, the allopathic physician would be permitted to practice dentistry, midwifery, chiropractic, surgery, optometry and Christian Science."

"Educational Requirements"

"It is to be hoped that the high school education shall be required from every one, or its equivalent, be it for admission to an institution to study any of the professions recognized by such a bill. This is as it should be. The chiropractor, naturopath, and all other practitioners who treat diseases of the human body should be required to obtain at least a four-year course of instruction that they have completed in an institution requiring personal attendance, and having a minimum number of hours of instruction totaling 4422. Corresponding educational requirements shall be established for the midwives, chiropractors, nurses, dentists, optometrists and others, but these educational requirements should be established by a board of examiners representing the best interests of these individual schools and they should not be set and dictated by the commissioner of health."

"Osteopaths, homeopaths, allopaths and eclectics should take their examinations in every subject, eliminating materia medica and therapeutics for all schools of medicine, but including surgery and chemistry as well, if all of the other subjects in the medical curriculum. The individual examining board should be fully recognized as the equal of any other and like privileges are due the one as much as to the other. The state boards should now provide an additional examination in surgery as the osteopath is thorough trained in this branch of medicine."

"Eliminate the Czar"

"The unfortunate eclectician physician is neither classed as a general licensed physician nor as a selected licensed practitioner. In the bill offered for Dr. Black, he ought to receive a general license so why not give it to him. If the board of regents is substituted throughout the bill, the state department of health, and if the secretary of the state board of education is substituted throughout the bill for the name of the commissioner of health, this bill will be ready for instant censure and a lively debate could readily ensue at that, for there are still many ways in which it could be improved."

"One thing must be done or else this bill, or similar bills like it, will never pass and that is to eliminate a one-man power as has been attempted in this bill. Introduced for Dr. Black which would give the commissioner of health the powers of a czar in regard to medical matters in the state. This legislation must be eliminated. It would be disastrous to the public interests to the best interests of health laws here in our state. Now is the time to act."

"Hartford Courant" of March 15, 1921.

DETOUR OSTEOPATHIC HOSPITAL

Organizes Hospital Staff

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the Detroit Osteopathic Hospital, the following osteopathic physicians were appointed to the hospital staff. The organization, as it stands, is temporary, but it is the nucleus of a strong, permanent staff. The executive committee, elected by members of the staff, consists of Dr. J. C. Trimby, Chairman; Dr. Paul C. Goodlove, Vice-Chairman; Dr. Alice M. Deane, Secretary; Dr. Geo. A. Ford, and Dr. H. M. Lathrop.

Personnel of Staff

Osteopathic, Applied Techniques—Dr. Herbert Bernard (Consulting), Dr. Rebecca B. Mayers, Dr. Howard Gilchrist, Dr. E. K. Eddy.

Nurses' Graduation

The Laughlin Hospital of Kirksville, Missouri, has just been completed and is now ready for occupancy. The hospital, which was built at a cost of over $100,000, is a modern hospital of four-story rooms. Twenty-four of these rooms contain beds for patients. The building is built of the very best materials and is equipped as well as the price of this size. An electric automatic heating system is in every room of the house. An electric automatic heating system means a great convenience. There are electric fans in every room for the general surgery and the operating rooms, and the operating rooms in this hospital are done for general surgery and the operating rooms for this kind of work. The building for the nurses' home is now ready for occupancy. Dr. Laughlin has secured competent personnel to do his work. He has a very large staff of men and women and the nurses' house is now ready for occupancy. The hospital will be held at the Sanitarium, June 16, 1921, at 8:00 p. m. All members of the staff and all friends of Dr. Laughlin are cordially invited to attend these exercises.

The staff includes: Miss Clara Powell, Miss Grace Boren, Mrs. George Winters, Miss Clem Cramer and Miss Elsie Kopp.

Our training school is badly in need of more student nurses in order to continue the care for our patients and render a better service. Dr. Laughlin will be glad to enroll at least a dozen dependable and qualified young ladies in our classes which we are enrolling at the present time. If you can call to mind any young ladies of suitable qualifications for the nursing profession we will please write us so that we may supply them with literature and application blanks. Won't you do so, please, and suggest the matter to them.
Leadership

Osteopathy needs for leadership are no longer in the future. We are setting examples in the face of situations which need men who are ready to act, who will not waste time in needless discussion, who are ready to take the consequences of their mistakes in order to preserve osteopathy for posterity. The greatest mistake which we make is that of doing nothing for fear we may commit an error. "Produce great men; the rest follow," wrote Whitman. This rule is as large a contract. Great men cannot be produced by order. In the critical crises of nations and races, the gods seem to descend and incarnate genius in a Lincoln, a Washington, a Wilson, a Foch, a Lloyd George. That many of them are disowned or proved the conclusion. Great men do their work and, if perchance they venture into other fields, they often become absurd. But even if they make serious errors, the world expects perfection from the newly born and failing to find it, calls for the cross, the scaffold, the guillotine. Greece burned or executed her greatest men. For Socrates, the hemlock; for Caesar, the sword; for Aristotle, ingratiation; for Aristides, exile.

Most of our great men in public life have arisen from obscurity. Andrew Taylor Still came from the common people, Lincoln thought the common people must be convinced of his idea because he made so many of them. It is a greater truth that nature produces her heroes in order that so many more may have the opportunity to emerge from the crowd to leadership which is necessary for the advancement of the civilization.

Osteopathy needs leaders. It needs men and women who are willing to sacrifice their own interests in order that the science founded by A. T. Still may live and grow.

We need numbers but we need leaders more. As we increase in numbers the possibilities in that direction. If we are to go ahead, a leader without followers is like an orange without a name.

To the Osteopathic profession there seems to have been given the task of carrying the burden of one of the great battles for human freedom. Humanity cannot fail to appreciate, except in an atmosphere of freedom.

KIRKSVILLE TO HAVE ANOTHER SCHOOL OF OSTEOPATHY.

Recently the Kirksville papers carried an item that the student body of the American School of Osteopathy and the citizens of Kirksville, by a vote of 2,540 for and 127 against, adding much that was unauthorized and the interest of the members of the profession, Dr. Arthur C. Hildreth. This Dr. Hildreth says he has no sense.

However, in all probabilities, the statement that Kirksville is to have another school is true, for it is the plan of Dr. Blanche Still-Laughlin and Dr. George Laughlin to carry out the original wishes of the Old Doctor in relation to the school of Osteopathy. In order to do this they have subscribed to the amount of $15,000, of which they will subscribe to one-third, the balance of the amount already has been subscribed by friends and the business men of the town; an appropriate building is to be erected with modern equipment.

The corporation is to be not for profit, and the first returns from the school, after providing the best teachers to the best men, to the students and their families, to the doctors and clinics, ingratitude; for Aristides, exile.

Illinois Holds Excellent Convention

Dr. C. E. Kaib of Springfield, Next President

The 22nd Annual Convention of the I. O. A. took place in Springfield May 13th and 14th. This was a most successful and interesting meeting and considering all the factors involved, the attendance was excellent.

The Association went on record for a large number of resolutions which are indicated by our resolutions. The Association also adopted a new plan concerning dues. We have fixed the dues of the I. O. A. at $40.00 a year and the Association will pay the A. O. A. dues of its members and appropriate $5.00 for each member for the district to which he is assigned. There are eight districts in the State and it is our hope that this method will assist in building up effective local organizations throughout the State.

The Association has conducted a large amount of legal work in the last year, having defended about six cases in the courts, and winning all of them except the one which is still pending.

The expense of this has been over $4,000. The legislative fight which is still unsettled has cost the Association about $2,000 up to date. With only 500 practitioners in the State it can readily be seen that it was necessary to increase the amount of our dues.

The Association went on record in favor of the organization of a clinic at Carlinville, Illinois for the purpose of providing facilities for the trip through the city and journey to Lincoln's home and monument. We wish to express our gratitude to Governor and Mrs. Small for their personal reception given to us at the mansion and office in the State Capitol.

We wish to express our appreciation and gratitude to the physicians who have generously opened their homes and splendid assembly hall. We are especially indebted to our late President, Dr. J. M. Wright, for his kindness in opening his home for our clinic during this convention.

The Resolutions Committee of the L O. A. submitted the amendments to our resolutions to the House of Delegates and on consideration, the following resolutions were adopted:

1. Resolved that the I. O. A. go on record as sanctioning and endorsing the Life Men's trip, now in progress, for the Chicago College of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons for its efforts on the part of the parent to provide for proper medical care of the sick.

We wish to thank the Masonic fraternity for its efforts in making our meeting the most successful in the history of our convention, and for the cordial reception shown at its house above.

We wish to thank the exhibitors for their display of practical appliances.

We wish to thank our committee, the members of the medical fraternity, for the kind hospitality shown; also to the Association in Cleveland, Ohio, this year.

Committee-Dr. Glenn Hanson, W. O. Medaris, C. O. Clites.

Hope to see you again next year in Illinois.

The Eastern Osteopathic Association
First Annual Meeting

In New York City at Hotel Penn­sylvania April 28-29 was held the First Annual Conference. Socially con­cluded the Osteopaths from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware. Organizing and carrying out the business for the first time of the ball at 9 A. M. Friday morning, which with banquet at night and full house reception kept most of us up and doing until the small hours, and then promptly at 9 A. M. the next day's session bonded the Assemblage ready for more and no less until nearly 6 P. M. We wish to express our praisefor those who care­fully and capably arranged for this triumph. Yet especial praise is due to Drs. Cecil R. Rogers, C. M. Ban­croft, L. Mason Beeman of New York, W. W. Tate of New Jersey, Charles J. Muttart of Pennsylvania, H. V. Carter of Maryland and Arthur Pat­terson of Delaware and all of their helpers who by their efficient arrange­ment and unflagging interest in the detail work kept all running smooth and no jams or friction ensued during the entire meeting.

The enjoyment of everyone pres­ent was shown by the well packed assembly room during the long and grilling sessions, and was only ex­cellled by the social, fraternal and general good fellowship which showed all of the time in the hearty and en­thusiastic smiling countenance of the four hundred radiant happy Osteopaths in attendance.

Besides the unlooked for heavy at­tendance from the five States included in this District, there were many Osteopaths with us from Boston and New England, from Chicago, Kirksville and elsewhere.

Both days from morning until night the Assembly Room was well filled with eager seekers after knowledge, and Technika always brought out the deepest interest and applause. The writer frequently heard members say that the number of people present was greater than one frequently seen at the general session of the National Society. Election of Officers for the ensuing year was an event in write­ing in selecting one Delegate from each of the five States and one Dele­gate at Large.

Dr. H. Van Arsdaile Hillman of New York was elected President and Drs. Charles M. Sigler and James S. Long of New Jersey, F. J. Smith of Penn­sylvania, Harry A. McMakin of New Jersey and Arthur Patterson of Dela­ware are the other five Officers. Next meeting will be one year later and held at Atlantic City, New Jersey. An active and aggressive Circuit "Place under the auspices of this New Society will be an early accomplish­ment.

The Exhibitors who enter to the Osteopathic seemed to enter into the general good fellowship of all pres­ent and seemed to be doing a thriving business.

The Pennsylvania Hospital with its 2,300 rooms and 2,309 baths and its superb equipment gave us a complete service that very likely has never be­fore been enjoyed by any Convention of Osteopaths.

When we left there Saturday night, most of us did so reluctantly, and as we were we could have sang with a "Yes the End of a Perfect Day." Yes, two of them.

The Reclamation of Spinal Cripples

Osteopathic practitioners experienced in the treatment of curvature and displacement of the spinal vertebrae are often disappointed to find that all the effects and benefits of manipulation obtained from one treatment are frequently lost before the patient returns for the next treatment.

In such cases the need of some form, mechanical support for the spine and back is equally indicated. By the aid of the Philo Burt Spinal appliance the benefits of each progressive treatment are preserved intact and a substantial improvement or complete cure is manifestly expedited.

We make this assertion on the authority of a large number of osteopathic physicians of considerable experience in the use of the Philo Burt Appliance as an auxiliary in the treatment of spinal cripples and invite any interested reader of this journal to write us for full information in the particular case.

THE MENTALITY OF J. T. STILL

W. Banks Meacham, D. Q., Asheville, N. C.

I fancy that much will be written about the character, the work, and the philosophy of the "Old Doctor." I envy those who can write personal reminiscences from contact with Dr. Still in life.

Because my association with him in life has been limited to a few hours and because my college days were not inspired by his virile personality, I can speak only of that which I have found in his works and his teachings—his mentality.

Wallis Whitman, in literature, to my mind is a counterpart of Dr. Still in science—both rough exteriorly; original, creative, iconoclastic mentally. Both deep lovers of humanity, but not unwilling to tear away conventionalism and prejudice which humanity has set to mark the metes and bounds of mental progress.

Herbert Spencer wrote his science from guessers' threads of thought on a loom of logic. Darwin took the facts gleaned from one corner of the field of nature science and revolutionised the method of handling all facts in every science. Newton lived through his law that shows the attraction of physical masses for one another. These men observed, meditated and formulated.

Dr. Still observed the facts of disease, he meditated on the known and mechanical laws of the universe, he formulated a philosophy not from logic—but nevertheless logical—and from this philosophy or thought he created a system of therapy in consonance with every then known and yet discovered fact of physiology and anatomy.

Spencer fabricated an ethical state. Darwin catalogued the creative steps of the Almighty. Newton formulated one universal material law. But Dr. Still's mentality observed, formulated, and created a system into the laboratory of disease and by his creative technique proves the efficiency of his creation.

No wonder the disciples of Dr. Still are often lost in the maze of his mental processes. His simple phrase: "watch the sweetbreads" in tuberculosis will take the life work of a dozen Koch, Wrights, and Von Rucke to fathom. "The rule of the artery is supreme" commands Ehrlich, Flexner and Noguchi to the herbal Infracure. He observed, he created; the neophyte can stop to search for his reasons.

But the marvel of Dr. Still's mentality lay not greater in his observation and creation than in his unconscious execution. An artist works by observable laws, but the artistic mind is unconscious of these laws.

Dr. Still unconsciously, and not as a pose, chose the place, the style of his living, the manner and form of his speech best adapted to the establishment of the idea that obsessed and possessed his being, the idea of making mechanical relations of the human body the foundation of a correct, logical efficient therapy.

In observation, in meditation, in formulating philosophic theories, Dr. Still may have his mental peers; in creation in execution he stands alone.

"CONFERENCE"

"There will be the usual Conference on Legislation and Education. The time is set for 2:30, Sunday, July the 26th, Hotel Stattler, Cleveland. Dr. C. R. Atman will act as Chairman of the Legislative Conference, and it will be immediately followed by the Educational Conference preceeded over by Dr. R. L. Scothorn.

"Members of the Board of Trustees and of the House of Delegates can ill afford to miss this meeting. If you are not a member of either body your presence is desired as well—that we may get a composite view of what the profession desires for future use.

"W. H. Waldo, Pres. A. O. A."

Resolutions Adopted by the New England Osteopathic Association at the Annual Meeting Held at Hotel Palmer, Portland, Maine, May 12, 14, 1921,

Resolved—

1. That the thanks of the New England Osteopathic Association be extended to the trustees and students of the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy for their courtesy, in providing a buffet dinner to the delegato during the convention in Boston last May.

2. That we endorse and commend the management of the M. C. O. in their attempt to make it a pure osteopathic institution.

3. That a vote of thanks be sent to the management of the Palmer Hotel for their courtesy, cooperation and kindness in helping to make this convention the big success it has been.

4. That a letter of congratulations be sent to the champions of the anti-compulsory vaccination law that was enacted during the present session of the legislature of the State of Maine.

5. That we go on record as opposed to compulsory vaccination and all other legislation tending to establish State Medicine.

6. That we endorse and condemn the work of the Citizens' Medical Reference Bureau of New York City in its opposition to pernicious medical legislation.

7. That a letter of censure be sent to Dr. Hugh L. Russell of Buffalo for his breach of ethics in divulging the confidence of Mrs. James A. Stillman in the Stillman divorce proceedings and that a letter be sent to the trustees of the American Osteopathic Association urging their suspension from that association for his unprofessional conduct.

8. That we extend our thanks and appreciation to Dr. Bart J. Bentkhall for his efforts in behalf of the M. C. O.

Our Milk Diet plan of treatment makes healthy flesh for the underweight patient, many of whom gain twenty pounds. This gives the support so much needed by stomach, intestines and other organs. If the patient is overweight, the treatment is directed so that scarcely, if any, gain is made. Most important, however, is the recovery of health made possible by the Milk Cure, combined with Osteopathy. Terms moderate. Write for information.
