This publication is produced by

ATSU Alumni Relations
800 W. Jefferson St.
Kirksville, MO 63501-1497

660.626.2307
fax 660.626.2703
alumni@atsu.edu

www.atsu.edu
You are an important part of our A.T. Still University-Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine (ATSU-KCOM) family, which is made up of more than 6,600 alumni, plus administration, faculty, staff, and friends. The Kirksville Osteopathic Alumni Association (KOAA) is committed to preserving the rich heritage of ATSU-KCOM and all of ATSU by offering the highest level of service and programs. We are fortunate to have alumni and friends whose support continues to move the University forward.

Recognizing outstanding alumni and friends through various awards is an important activity and is just one of the many programs the alumni association takes pride in supporting.

Through their achievements, the individuals honored help ensure the continued reputation of excellence at our University. At the same time, these individuals set a high standard for the aspiration and goals of ATSU-KCOM. We are proud to honor their leadership, service, and commitment to ATSU-KCOM.

Kirksville Osteopathic Alumni Association Board of Directors

Linnette Sells, DO, ‘82
President

Howard S. Levine, DO, ‘87
President Elect

John Bodell, DO, FACOS, ‘71
Past President

Donald Kurt Brown, DO, ‘64

Tarah Castleberry, DO, MPH, ‘98

Kimberly Grace Perry, DO, ‘91

Deborah Jane Power, DO, ‘97

Rick Robbins, DO, ‘77

Richard Harry Still III, DO, ‘78

Renee Karen Sundstrom, DO, ‘91

STUDENT EX OFFICIO MEMBERS

Sharon Dykstra, DO, ‘87

David E. Goldman, DO, JD, ‘91

J. Matt Halverson, DO, FAAFP, ‘92

William S. Hughes, DO, ‘87

David W. Kelley, DO, ‘03

Joseph Novinger, DO, ‘89

Amanda Schoenfuss, ‘15
Class of 2015 Representative

Hannah Ziegler, ‘16
Class of 2016 Representative

Leslie Wilson-Davis, ‘17
Class of 2017 Representative
The KOAA Board of Directors established the Alumnus of the Year Award in 1982 to recognize and honor ATSU-KCOM graduates who have made outstanding contributions to the College and the osteopathic profession.

The award provides the opportunity for fellow alumni, colleagues, patients, students, and friends of the recipient to honor the Alumnus of the Year and support ATSU-KCOM's education program.

All gifts received in honor of the recipient are restricted for the KOAA-KCOM Education Program Fund.
Margaret A. Wilson, DO, ’82

A Kirksville native, Dr. Wilson has always been surrounded by osteopathic influences. Not only was her family doctor and next door neighbor ATSU-KCOM Professor Emeritus Delbert Maddox, DO, ’55, she also has two brothers who are KCOM alumni. Inspired by them and Dr. Max Gutensohn, at age 13, she officially decided she too would become an osteopathic physician. Today, Dr. Wilson spends many busy hours serving as dean of ATSU-KCOM. Through her work, as a physician and educator, she has brought the principles of osteopathy into thousands of lives.

After completing her undergraduate studies at Truman State University and graduating from ATSU-KCOM, Dr. Wilson interned at Grandview Hospital in Dayton, Ohio. She then served in the National Health Service Corps before returning to her hometown, where she has practiced in family medicine as a board-certified family practitioner, with a special interest in women’s health and geriatrics, more than 30 years. She has been a staff physician for the Northeast Missouri Health Council, where she also acted as medical director more than 20 years. She is also on staff at Northeast Regional Medical Center. She is a member of the American Osteopathic Association, American College of Osteopathic Family Physicians, Missouri Public Health Association, Society of Teachers of Family Medicine, and Missouri Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons.

Dr. Wilson’s commitment to ATSU-KCOM has remained as constant as her dedication to the osteopathic profession. As an educator at her alma mater, she has served as professor and chair of the Department of Family Medicine prior to becoming dean of ATSU-KCOM. While chair for the Department of Family Medicine, she developed the communication skills and doctoring skills course known as The Complete DOctor. She has also been faculty adviser for several student organizations, including the American Medical Student Association, undergraduate chapter of the American College of Osteopathic Family Physicians, and the National Osteopathic Women Physicians Association. In recognition of her contributions, Dr. Wilson has received the A.T. Still Staff Award for Excellence in Teaching, the Governor’s Award for Excellence in Teaching, and the KOAA Distinguished Service Award.

Dr. Wilson has been avidly involved in the Kirksville community over the years, providing health education, serving on local boards, and most recently fundraising for the local Boy Scouts of America. She recently served as chair of the Northeast Missouri Hospice Board.

When she isn’t busy at the helm of ATSU-KCOM, Dr. Wilson enjoys reading, gardening, golfing, and spending quality time with family and friends. She recently hit her first “hole in one!” She and her husband Charles reside in Kirksville and have three adult children: Charlie, Ben, and Mary Kate.

Her extended family includes other ATSU-KCOM graduates: one sister-in-law, one niece and one nephew.
The Living Tribute Award program was established by the KOAA Board of Directors in 1969. Since then, it has provided alumni, colleagues, students, and friends of the College with an opportunity to honor outstanding ATSU-KCOM faculty and administration who have made significant contributions to the College and the osteopathic profession.

All gifts received in honor of the recipient are restricted for the KOAA-KCOM Education Program Fund.
Living Tribute Award

Lori Haxton, MA

Since 1988, Haxton has been a driving force in the lives of ATSU-KCOM students. She has held the positions of director of admissions & enrollment services, assistant dean for student services, associate vice president for student & alumni services, associate vice president for admissions & student affairs, and now vice president for student affairs. In her current position she provides the leadership and administration for the following University departments: Admissions, Financial Services, Registrar’s Office, Learning Resources, Counseling, Student Wellness, and Student Life.

In addition to her role with Student Affairs, Haxton has served as an instructor for the ATSU-KCOM Department of Family Medicine, Preventive Medicine, and Community Health. Her commitment to ATSU students carries over into her involvement with student organizations, acting as an adviser to the University Student Association, Student Government Association, and Student Advocate Association. Her dedication has also been long recognized by the KOAA, which presented her with Honorary Membership in 1999 and the Distinguished Service Award in 2006. In 2012, she was recipient of the Missouri Association of Osteopathic Physicians Medallion Award, in recognition of her significant service to the osteopathic profession. Haxton is also a recipient of the ATSU Employee Distinguished Service and Excellence in Advising Student Organizations awards.

Haxton’s philanthropic support of ATSU-KCOM further demonstrates her support of the University and its students. She and her husband, Jason Haxton, director of the Museum of Osteopathic Medicine, are recipients of the Diplomate lifetime giving level honor. They have endowed The Jason and Lori Haxton Scholarship for Underrepresented Students to support students from historically underrepresented populations.

After obtaining her undergraduate degree from University of Wisconsin-La Crosse, Haxton completed her master’s at Truman State University. She and Jason briefly left Kirksville, returning in 1985 and settling just north of Kirksville in Greentop. The Haxton’s have two grown children: Ross, a Truman State University graduate who resides in Florida, and Laurel, a senior at Drake University. When she isn’t busy working with student associations, Haxton enjoys international travel with her family, spending time with her parents who live in Kirksville, reading historical non-fiction, and being very involved with the Food Bank for Northeast Missouri. In keeping with the University’s whole person health emphasis, Haxton is also an active coordinator and participant in area walk/run events and an avid Wisconsin and winter sports enthusiast.
G. Scott Drew, DO, FAOCD, '87

Dr. Drew's devotion to ATSU-KCOM and the osteopathic profession has positively impacted many. He currently serves as chair of the ATSU Board of Trustees, while continuing his practice, lecturing, and regularly serving abroad on medical relief missions. Guiding the University by leadership and example, he has been instrumental in furthering the University in its mission to be first in whole person healthcare.

After completion of his undergraduate studies at Loyola University in 1983, Dr. Drew enrolled at ATSU-KCOM. Earning his doctor of osteopathic medicine degree in 1987, he moved to St. Louis, Mo., to complete a traditional internship, prior to completing residencies in family practice and dermatology. Dr. Drew is board certified by the American Osteopathic College of Dermatology (AOCD), American College of Osteopathic Family Physicians (ACOFP), and American Osteopathic Association (AOA). Since 1992, he has practiced dermatology in Marion, Ohio.

Before assuming the chair of the ATSU Board of Trustees in 2012, Dr. Drew served on the KOAA Board of Directors for many years, including a term as president. He is a member of the ATSU Alumni Association and founding member of the KCOM Legacy Society. Dr. and Mrs. Drew recently received the University's Diplomate lifetime giving award in recognition of their philanthropic support. As a Tel-Alumni volunteer for many years, he served as national campaign chair, coordinating volunteers, and personally calling alumni to encourage support of the University through annual pledges.

Dr. Drew is a member of many professional organizations including the American Academy of Dermatology, AOA, AOCD, Ohio Dermatologic Association, Society of Dermatologic Physician Assistants, Ohio Osteopathic Association, Marion Academy of Medicine, and Dermatology Foundation. He also belongs to the National Osteopathic Honor Society and is a Diplomate of the National Board of Medical Examiners. Dr. Drew is an active member of the Ohio Task Force on Tobacco Control and Marion County chapters of the American Cancer Society, United Way, and Rotary International.

A true believer in lifelong learning, Dr. Drew serves as adjunct assistant professor at the Ohio University-College of Osteopathic Medicine and is published in many peer review journals. He lectures nationally and internationally and is a frequent presenter at continuing education programs. His passion for serving the undeserved is evidenced by his numerous medical relief missions to communities where neither medical care nor healthcare is readily available. Dr. Drew has made several trips to underdeveloped countries such as Kenya, Uganda, Vietnam, and India.

Dr. Drew and his wife, Pamela, are the parents of two adult children, Delaney and Daniel. When he does take a break from his professional passion, he enjoys skiing, white water rafting, and family time.
Robert J. Theobald Jr., PhD

Dr. Theobald’s long service to ATSU-KCOM began in November 1976, and in 1991 he was named chair of the Pharmacology department. As chair, he has emphasized spiral, integrated learning that incorporates technological resources and combines them with an approach that highlights teamwork. His research interests focus on the regulation and interaction of the urinary tract. His research is designed to study the neurotransmitters, autonomic and purinergic, in the neural pathways involved in urinary tract interaction.

Dr. Theobald received his undergraduate degree from Wheeling Jesuit University in 1967, and his doctorate from the University of Pittsburgh in 1975. His commitment to education has twice been recognized with the A.T. Still Staff Award for Excellence in Teaching. In 1996, KOAA awarded him the Honorary KOAA Membership Award, and in 2011 he received the KOAA Living Tribute Award in honor of his significant contributions to the College and the osteopathic profession. He and his wife, Janie, were recently recipients of the Honored Patron Award for their generous financial support of ATSU. The Robert J. Theobald Jr., PhD, Pharmacology Department Operations Endowment was established by his former students in recognition of his dedicated teaching.

Professionally, Dr. Theobald is active in many organizations, including the American Society of Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics, Urodynamics Society, Society for Basic Urological Research, Sigma Xi, American Urological Association, and the Association of Medical School Pharmacology Chairs. His personal affiliations include the Adair County Division of the American Heart Association, Kirksville Country Club, Missouri Drug Utilization Review Committee, Superintendent Advisory Committee, and the Mary Immaculate Parish Council.

Although a Kirksville resident since 1976, Dr. Theobald is a Pennsylvania native. The Theobald’s are the parents of three children: Robert Theobald III, DO, ’01; Kristen Theobald, DO, ’05; and Heidi Theobald, a marine biologist.
A. Kay Kalousek, DO, MS, MSHPE, AAHIVE, FACOF

Dr. Kalousek joined ATSU as dean of the School of Osteopathic Medicine in Arizona (ATSU-SOMA) in 2012. She brought her considerable educational experience and passion for serving underserved populations, and in keeping with the mission of serving the underserved, continued to move ATSU-SOMA in this direction. Although Dr. Kalousek left ATSU-SOMA in June 2015, her influence on students and the School remains a powerful legacy.

After earning a bachelor’s degree from Loma Linda University in 1983, Dr. Kalousek received her first master’s degree in biology from Cal State University, San Bernardino, in 1985. She earned her DO degree from the College of Osteopathic Medicine of the Pacific (COMP) in 1989, and her master’s in health professions education in 1994. Dr. Kalousek completed her family medicine residency at Doctor’s Hospital of Montclair/Ontario Community Hospital in 1992, and proceeded to become board certified in family medicine. Her osteopathic medical practice focus was in the area of HIV/AIDS and she remains credentialed as an HIV expert (AAHIVE) by the American Academy of HIV Medicine. Dr. Kalousek is also a fellow of the American College of Osteopathic Family Physicians (ACOFP).

Dr. Kalousek has served several non-profit organizations in various roles, including past chair of the board of the Foothill AIDS Project and a board member of the Keogh Health Connection, which serves uninsured people in the greater Phoenix area. In 1993, Dr. Kalousek was named the Volunteer of the Year by the city of Montclair for her many years of service at the Montclair Clinic. She was also instrumental in establishing a clinic site in California for medical students to provide services to homeless patients and contributed by personally providing free medical care for multiple underserved groups. The COMP DO class of 2006 honored her as Most Inspirational Faculty Member, and as a facilitator and educator she received many other awards from students and faculty. In 2010, the California ACOFP chapter presented Dr. Kalousek with its Physician of the Year award, and in 2012, COMP awarded her the Lifetime Fellow of Excellence Award. Recently, the Arizona Osteopathic Medical Association named Dr. Kalousek the 2015 Osteopathic Medical Educator of the Year.

Prior to accepting the role of dean at ATSU-SOMA, Dr. Kalousek served as the COMP associate dean for academic and student affairs at Western University of Health Sciences in Pomona, Calif., where she also served as an associate professor of family medicine. As a frequent academic lecturer, Dr. Kalousek has presented on a variety of health topics, including “Clinical Care of the HIV-infected Patient” and “Health Care for Minority Groups.”

Dr. Kalousek was born in Pomona, Calif., and raised in La Verne. After leaving ATSU-SOMA, she returned to California to join her family.
Richard J. LaBaere II, DO, MPH, FAOMED

From the beginning of his career as a private practice physician to his current role as administrator and educator, Dr. LaBaere has been committed to the osteopathic profession. His ties to ATSU-KCOM began when he completed his leadership in osteopathic medical education fellowship in Kirksville. These ties have remained strong, with Dr. LaBaere joining ATSU-KCOM as a regional assistant dean and associate dean for postgraduate training and Still Osteopathic Postdoctoral Training Institute (Still OPTI) Academic Officer, as well as being a family medicine rotation preceptor and adjunct clinical professor. Dr. LaBaere says he is appreciative of, and thankful for, the past and current opportunities ATSU-KCOM has provided him to hone his skills as an educator, leader, and administrator.

Dr. LaBaere received his bachelor’s degree in microbiology and master’s of public health in health behavior and health education degrees at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, Mich., then his doctor of osteopathy degree from Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine in 1990. After completing both his traditional internship and family practice residency at the Flint Osteopathic Hospital in Flint, Mich., he went into private practice.

From 1993 to 2007, Dr. LaBaere served as osteopathic family practice residency director at Genesys Regional Medical Center and director of medical education - osteopathic from 1998 through 2012. He has served as both the director of medical education and designated institutional officer at Genesys as well as chair of the governing board of Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine Statewide Campus System.

Dr. LaBaere has served as past president of the Association of Osteopathic Directors and Medical Educators (AODME), chair of the American Osteopathic Association (AOA) Internship and Institutional Education Committee, chair of the Program and Trainee Review Council, and on boards with numerous other professional organizations. He is currently a member of the National Board of Osteopathic Medical Examiners Board of Directors and Executive Committee of the Board.

With his osteopathic medical education passions lying in the areas of continuous improvement, professionalism, and faculty development, it is no surprise Dr. LaBaere has received numerous awards and been a key speaker in osteopathic venues. He has been recognized with the Primary Care Educator of the Year at Genesys Regional Medical Center, Above and Beyond Award from ATSU, Osteopathic Family Physician of the Year by the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Family Physicians, AOA Mentor Hall of Fame Inductee, fellow of AODME, and Guardian of the Profession from AOA. Dr. LaBaere was the ATSU-KCOM White Coat Ceremony keynote speaker in 2006 and co-presented with Dr. Karen Snider at the Mitchell Kasovac, DO, Honorary Lecture at the Osteopathic Medicine Education Leadership Conference in Los Angeles, Calif., in 2015.

He and his wife Catherine, along with their daughter Amanda, and son Matthew, both of whom are in college, currently reside in Ortonville, Mich. Dr. LaBaere enjoys working in his garden during the summers, and like many lifelong northerners, is a winter sports enthusiast, with ATV riding and snowmobiling as his favorites.
Bernice A. Nelson Lirones, MA, BSEd, AA

Mrs. Lirones, along with her late husband, David Lirones, DO, ’53, has been a supporter of lifelong learning and helping young people achieve their dreams. Through acts of love, generosity, and kindness, a legacy of compassion and support has been founded and thousands of lives have been enriched. A shining star in her own right, Mrs. Lirones has dedicated her life to instilling the importance of education and service, in her own children and students, from grade school to graduate school ages.

After losing her mother when she was 8 years old, Mrs. Lirones was raised by her father in the family home in northern Michigan during the Depression. Early on she recognized education was the key to a better life for all people. After earning her associate’s degree from Flint Junior College, she completed her bachelor’s degree at Central Michigan University, and her master’s degree in education at the University of Michigan.

In 1946, Mrs. Lirones met her future husband, David, who had just returned from serving in the Army during World War II and had suffered injuries during battle. Soon after, they were engaged, and they married at the end of his summer school semester in July 1948. When he completed his studies at Central Michigan University the next year, they moved to Kirksville for him to study at ATSU-KCOM (then KCOS). While in Kirksville, Mrs. Lirones taught kindergarten at two local elementary schools. Her husband’s health was precarious for some time, and she often referred to her education as her retirement policy and a way to support the couple and hoped-for family, should it become necessary. Upon Dr. Lirones’ graduation, they returned to Michigan with their first child on the way. Mrs. Lirones cashed in her teacher’s pension to buy a dryer so she could dry diapers, and later told her firstborn, Carol, that she (Carol) became her new retirement plan. Bruce, Brian, and Ruth were also born to the couple at their beloved Flint Osteopathic Hospital. Although she did not return to full-time classroom teaching, her contributions to education continued through interaction with her family, community involvement, and her philanthropic support.

With her characteristic love of life, music, and God, Mrs. Lirones made certain her children were able to attend every church and school event, music lesson, and scout meeting, while her husband kept a busy schedule with his patients. He arrived at most every concert or major event to share the joys of parenting their children. He loved yard work and fresh air, and the family all knew how to mow the lawn, dig weeds, and shovel the snow. Together the couple quietly provided choir robes and musical instruments to students in need and put music in the hearts and souls of every child within reach. As elders, deacons, and Sunday school teachers, the Lirones dedication to their church remained constant throughout their marriage. An accomplished pianist herself, Mrs. Lirones continues to support community art and music programs. Her involvement with Kiwanis International has been long-standing. For many years, the Lirones family raised Christmas trees, from planting to harvesting, on Mrs. Lirones’ farm (she still owns the farm on which her mother had been born). For decades each December, the trees were cut and donated to Kiwanis fundraisers.
Realizing the challenge of paying for education, Dr. and Mrs. Lirones created scholarships and endowments to help students “make their lives better and the lives of others better.” Together they established the Dr. David S. and Bernice A. Nelson Lirones Scholarship Fund at Central Michigan University in 1960. Mrs. Lirones has personally presented the scholarship awards each year. In honor of ATSU-KCOM and osteopathy, the school and profession in which Dr. Lirones deeply believed in and were responsible for launching his more than 35-year career in medicine, the Lirones family created the Dr. David and Bernice Lirones Endowment for Osteopathic Manipulative Medicine at ATSU-KCOM, to which Bernice and her children continue to contribute. She has also provided scholarships for teens to attend art and music camps at Interlochen, Westminster Choir College, and other programs.

Together, Dr. and Mrs. Lirones were able to travel and enjoy DO conventions, Army reunions, school reunions, and Kiwanis events throughout North America, especially after “retirement.” They also loved visiting family and friends in various locations in the United States.

Besides her piano-playing talents, Mrs. Lirones writes poetry, is a talented needleworker, and is still active in her Kiwanis Club. She lovingly served as band mom, choir mom, and everything else booster throughout her life. She has been active in her community in many aspects of keeping quality of life in place for all those around her. Mrs. Lirones also has served on several educational advisory boards and committees at high school and college levels, including one at Michigan State University’s DO school.

In testament of her love for her husband, her God, and her family, Mrs. Lirones has four grown children (Carol, Bruce, Brian, and Ruth), their spouses, and her four grandchildren, who have become kind, loving, caring, and well-educated, continuing her legacy. Her granddaughter has already joined Grandpa in heaven. Her son, Bruce D. Lirones, DO, ’82, is also an ATSU-KCOM alumnus.
Patricia S. Sexton, DHEd, MS, FNAOME, ’08

With more than 26 years as an ATSU-KCOM faculty member, Dr. Patricia “Trish” Sexton has worked in curricular and faculty development while becoming a nationally recognized leader in osteopathic medical education. Her work has helped to shape not only the education received by ATSU-KCOM students, but also the education of students and osteopaths across the nation.

Dr. Sexton received her bachelor’s degree in biology from Rockhurst University in Kansas City, followed by her master’s in molecular microbiology from the University of Missouri School of Medicine in Columbia, Mo. In 1988, she began her career at ATSU-KCOM as a research assistant in the department of anatomy and went on to earn her doctorate in health education from ATSU’s School of Health Management (now known as College of Graduate Health Sciences). Dr. Sexton has since served ATSU-KCOM as faculty member and associate dean for curriculum. In 2009, Dr. Sexton completed the American Osteopathic Association Osteopathic Heritage Foundation Health Policy Fellowship.

Through her involvement with committees both locally and nationally, Dr. Sexton has been involved with curriculum and faculty development, diversity, performance assessment, Commission on Osteopathic College Accreditation standards, strategic plan implementation, and continuing education. She is a reviewer for many educational and grant studies, and her publications and presentations range from biochemistry topics to academic. Dr. Sexton has received the KOAA Distinguished Service Award, Above and Beyond Humanitarian Award, and A.T. Still Staff Award for Excellence in Teaching. She was an inaugural member of the National Academy of Osteopathic Medical Educators, and completed her Leadership in Osteopathic Medical Education Fellowship in 2005. Dr. Sexton received the Leonard Tow 2010 Humanism in Medicine Award and was initiated into the Gold Humanism Honor Society in 2012. Most recently, she was awarded the Society of Osteopathic Medical Educators Innovation Award. In addition to her involvement with professional committees and societies, Dr. Sexton serves as faculty adviser to many ATSU-KCOM student groups.

Dr. Sexton and her husband, Dr. William Sexton, who is a professor in the Department of Physiology at ATSU-KCOM, are the parents of two grown daughters, Claire and Grace. In addition to her many work-related activities, Dr. Sexton is very active in the Kirksville community. She serves as youth ministry director for the Mary Immaculate Church and is also on the board of Hope’s Kitchen.
ATSU’s KOAA is proud of all the recipients of its legendary annual awards. This publication offers an opportunity to honor these individuals by making a contribution in their name. Contributions are directed to the KOAA’s Education Program Fund or the KOAA Student Request Fund.

Education Program Fund

This fund is for the improvement of osteopathic medical education in all ATSU-KCOM departments. ATSU-KCOM’s mission is to prepare osteopathic physicians eminently qualified for the challenges of the 21st century. The goal of the fund is to assist in accomplishing this vital mission.

Investment income, from donations made in honor of the Living Tribute Award and the Alumnus of the Year recipients, is used to acquire needed educational resources such as equipment, textbooks and resource books, and professional periodicals, as well as fund innovative educational programs.

The number of programs funded each year is determined by College needs. Annually, the KOAA Awards Committee receives project nominations of highest priority from the ATSU-KCOM dean. The awards committee reviews nominated proposals and recommends projects for funding to the president. In 2014-2015, this fund awarded $2,495 to Robert J. Theobald Jr., PhD, to be used for equipment needed for the “Providing Enrichment Self-Study Materials for Medical Students” program.

Student Request Fund

This fund provides support for ATSU-KCOM student organizations that request financial support for their organization’s activities. KOAA funds this program through contributions received in honor of Honorary Membership and Distinguished Service Award recipients.

The fund’s balance determines the number of requests supported each year. Annually, the KOAA Awards Committee receives student organization requests from the Student Government Association Executive Committee. The awards committee reviews all nominated proposals and recommends those to be funded. In 2014-2015, $2,900 in awards from this fund were distributed to the American College of Osteopathic Pediatricians-KCOM, American Medical Student Association, DOCare International, Gay Straight Alliance, Neuro Psych Club, Secular Student Interest Group, Sigma Sigma Phi Osteopathic Honors Society, Still Caring Community Clinic Club, Student Advocate Association, Student American Academy of Osteopathy, Student National Medical Association, Student Osteopathic Medical Association, Wilderness Medicine Club, and Young Minds of Regenerative Medicine, to be used for their submitted projects.
To further its educational goals and remain a leader in osteopathic medical education, ATSU-KCOM looks to its loyal graduates and friends for support. Your gift recognizes these individuals’ achievements and provides current ATSU-KCOM students with opportunities to enhance their medical education.

My gift is in honor of

2015 Alumnus of the Year
- Margaret A. Wilson, DO, ’82

2015 Living Tribute Award Recipient
- Lori Haxton, MA

2015 Distinguished Service Award Recipients
- G. Scott Drew, DO, FAOCD, ’87
- Robert J. Theobald Jr., PhD

2015 Honorary KOAA Membership
- A. Kay Kalousek, DO, MS, MSHPE, AAHIVE, FACOFP
- Richard J. LaBaere II, DO, MPH, FAODME
- Bernice A. Nelson Lirones, MA, BSEd, AA
- Patricia S. Sexton, DHEd, MS, FNAOME, ’08

Thank you for your generous support! Recipient(s) will be notified of those who give in their honor.

Would you prefer to have this brochure sent by email to you next year? If yes, please provide your preferred email address:

Please mail your gift to Development
A.T. Still University
800 W. Jefferson St.
Kirksville, MO 63501

866.626.2878, ext. 2180
fax 660.626.2970
development@atsu.edu or online at www.atsu.edu/KOAA
Contact information

Please provide us with the following information so we may contact you if we have questions about your gift.

________________________________________________________________

Complete name

________________________________________________________________

Preferred address (circle - home / business)

________________________________________________________________

City

________________________________________________________________

State, ZIP

________________________________________________________________

Phone (circle - home / business / cell)

________________________________________________________________

Preferred email address

Enclosed is my gift in the amount of $ _______________________.

Please make checks payable to ATSU.

If you prefer to make your gift by credit card, please complete the following. Check the box by the card you are using.

☐ Corporate  ☐ Personal

☐ Visa  ☐ MasterCard  ☐ Discover  ☐ American Express

Card number _____________________________  Amount to be charged ___________

Expiration date _______________________________

Name as it appears on card or name of corporation __________________________

Signature ______________________________________________________________

For online gifting: www.atsu.edu/KOAA